On Highlights' masthead is the phrase "Today Well Lived." It is excerpted from the following poem:

Salutation of the Dawn

Look to this day,
For it is the very life of life.
In its brief course lie all the verities and realities of your existence;
The glory of action,
The bliss of growth,
The splendor of beauty,
For yesterday is but a dream and
Tomorrow is only a vision;
But today well lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness,
And every tomorrow a vision of hope,
Look well, therefore, to this day.

President's Message - Josh Gross '91

Hello fellow Normans:

We have welcomed our new principal David Jackson to campus. Dave is a seasoned educator who brings many years of experience in public education to Beverly. You can read a little bit about his biography below.

In late March, we will hold our annual dinner along with the Beverly Hills Athletic Alumni Association. Thanks to Julie Steinberg and BHAAA president David Corwin '87 for their help in organizing the dinner, which helps fund our many projects throughout the year.

Unfortunately, the KL Peters Auditorium remains closed for purely political reasons. This auditorium is safe, always has been safe, and hopefully will be reopened soon.

Once again I've had the pleasure of working with Melanie Anderson on the production of this edition, which was completed before its deadline and under budget.

Melanie, who previously served as editor of Beverly Hills Weekly, oversees the editorial duties. As you can see in this publication, she does excellent work. We welcome your photos and submissions for future editions of Alumni Highlights.

The Alumni Association was founded in December, 1977. Our organization has grown significantly since that time. We now mail this Alumni Highlights to over 18,500 graduates living all over the world. The financial support of graduates like you has allowed us to become the biggest contributor of alumni scholarships. This year, as in years past, we awarded $12,000 to deserving graduating seniors.

In closing, don't forget that you graduated from the most famous high school in the country—probably the world. We need your financial support as we help take our alma mater to even higher places. So if you enjoy reading your Alumni Highlights, please consider making a contribution and sending in a class note today.

Until next time my friends, Go Normans!

Introducing first-year Principal David Jackson

David Jackson began his career in education as a teacher in 1973. He has taught at the high school, community college and university level. This will be his 19th year as a secondary administrator. In 2006-2007, he was named a Blue Ribbon principal at Calabasas High. He retired in 2007 and came out of retirement in 2014 for a one-year interim position at Malibu High before coming to Beverly High.

Our students continue to shine, applying and getting accepted to the top 1% of colleges such as Princeton, Cornell, Michigan, UCLA, Berkeley and USC, to name a few. Also, we continue to excel in many extracurricular areas.

At the time of writing, we have qualified for the following:

- Cheerleading to the National Championships
- Photography headed to the state Skills USA competition
- Urban Search & Rescue headed to the state Skills USA competition
- KBEV's Broadcast Team and Radio Airlift Team headed to state Skills USA competition
- Technical Related Math may be headed to the state Skills USA competition
- Robotics headed to regional and national competitions
- Virtual Enterprise students competing in regional business competitions

— DECA's Marketing Team won many awards at Regional and is headed to the state DECA competition

— Speech and Debate—students are competing in both parliamentary debate as well as many of the 16 different speech categories.

At the time of writing, Beverly was participating in the first round of the Boys CIF Basketball playoffs at home.

NEW THIS YEAR

Elementary School News: Recreating a program from the 1970s, BHUSD middle school students come to KBEV once per month to produce and record a broadcast of their school's activities.

Virtual Enterprise Class: Beverly students have the incredible opportunity to start a business and compete through the Virtual Enterprise global program and network.

Culinary Arts Catering and Bread Business: The culinary arts students started an incredibly popular faculty lunch delivery service, with soup and entrees from $4-$8, the proceeds of which help fund culinary competition opportunities. Business, culinary and graphic arts students have come together to form a bread business. The homemade sourdough is sold at the Beverly Hills Farmers Market, local businesses and various community gatherings around Beverly Hills.

Career Creators Program: Beverly High, together with the Beverly Hills Chamber of Commerce and the Beverly Hills Education Foundation (BHEF), started Career Creators as a structure inspiring business support of local career education. Ten industry groups are forming, members of which will provide real world experience for our career education students.

Our annual career day is a dynamic opportunity for students to attend workshops led by over 100 speakers across over 50 professions. In 2015, Beverly hosted Congressman Ted Lieu as the keynote speaker. The day culminates with an Internship Fair as well as a buffet lunch, catered by our own BHHS Culinary students.

The Beverly Hills High School Theatre has had an exciting 2015-2016 season produced by BHHS Alum, Michael J. Libow, and in cooperation with BHEF and BHHS Athletics and Arts Alumni Association. Currently, over 70 students are involved in the spring musical, Monty Python's Spamalot.

For the first time, the annual College Connections Fair was moved to October in order to better serve the college planning needs of our families, particularly seniors and juniors. We had 90 colleges and universities at the College Connections Fair, with hundreds of BHHS students and parents engaging with the representatives throughout the evening.

In closing, we need to give special thanks to BHEF, which has supported a multitude of educational programs, subsidizing teachers for extracurricular activities and professional development, and the PTA Council and our own PTSA for all the support and encouragement we receive each and every day from them. Beverly Hills Athletic Alumni Association (BHAAA) has kept our sports program alive with their dedication and financial support of our students. I thank the school board and the community for allowing me to work with them this year at Beverly High.

Hochman '43 donates baseballs from the '40s

In a past issue of Alumni Highlights, Jack Ince '46 shared a story about pitching to future pro Duke Snider from Compton and Duke hit the ball way over his head. Paul Hochman '43, who lettered in baseball all four years at Beverly, remembers that game. He was an outfielder. When he saw Duke hit the ball, he turned and ran as fast as he could. When he turned back, the ball fell right into his glove and Duke was out.

Paul remembers going to many swap meets to buy balls to use in practice (the high school at that time didn't have enough balls). He recently found approximately 200 baseballs from the '40s that he had stored and recently donated them to Beverly's baseball team. He said he has the fondest memories of Beverly and the baseball team.

The role of a lifetime: Kessler '71 becomes superintendent

Steve Kessler '71 became superintendent of BHUSD in June 2015, after 34 years in the classroom and five years as principal, all at Horace Mann. Kessler taught kindergarten, first grade, fourth grade, fifth grade, and middle-school mathematics and physical education.

Alumni Highlights spoke with Kessler in early February. Excerpts follow.

Beverly High runs deep in your family. ... Tell us about that.

Our roots in Beverly Hills started when my grandfather Louis Boyar moved from east Los Angeles into Beverly Hills and he lived for many years at the southwest corner of Foothill Road and Sunset. My parents [Jerry Kessler and Pearl Boyar] met at Beverly.

I was raised in Beverly Hills. I first attended El Rodeo in the 1958 kindergarten class and I went kindergarten through eighth grade [there]. ... I was very inspired by my fifth-grade teacher, Mr. Bill Porter, who taught at El Rodeo for many years. Both of my grandfathers were licensed general contractors, as well as my father, and since I was the oldest of all the kids, guess what I was supposed to be? Actually, I am a licensed general contractor, since 1987, because I learned all that stuff through my [family]. But—when I was 10 years old, I came home and told my mother that I wanted to be a teacher like Mr. Porter.

... At Beverly High, I participated in all the sports—football, basketball and baseball. I loved my coaches. I loved my teachers. I had a great experience. Then I went to University of the Pacific and went right into the school of education. ... In the fall of '75, I started the [interview] process ... for a kindergarten job at Horace Mann ... and I [began] teaching [there in] 1976.

On the personal side, I was married six months before I started teaching at Horace Mann and I have been married to Denise for 40 years. We have two kids, [Jessica '96 and David '02, who are] both Beverly graduates, and four grandchildren. My sister Karen '70 [and] my brother Peter '73 went to Beverly. My younger brothers and sisters went to El Rodeo before my family moved to Israel in 1972.

[In 2010,] how did you decide the time was right to go into administration?

The truth of it was that I never wanted to be an administrator, but as I got near what I thought would be the end of my career, I started to think maybe [principal] would be a good position for me since I could give back a lot of the knowledge [I had] acquired over the last 34 years.

... I thought that if anybody knew Horace Mann, it was me. I did have ideas of ways to improve the school—not that it needed a ton of improvement ...—but I did know certain things that I thought would help boost our school. And it worked. I had buy in from the staff and the community and the kids. ... It felt very natural actually.

... Two years ago, you had plans to retire. What made you stay?

Over two years ago I had announced to my staff ... that after 38 years, I thought that would be enough. But I was approached by board members and community members and staff members and they asked me if I could just stay at least through the time to get our new construction out of the way. ...

The first modernization for our district actually started at Horace Mann. We redid our auditorium for $3.5 million. [That] was our first project [and it] came in $33,000 under budget and three months [ahead of schedule]. ... One of the nicest compliments I got from one of my teachers was, 'It's amazing, but all that work was done and we hardly even knew it.'

... This year, believe it or not, was supposed to be the swan song. But a funny thing happened. ... [I was asked] to consider staying and to possibly apply for the superintendent's job. ... I [came] home and talk[ed] it over with my family because ... I thought it would take at least three years for us to really move forward as a district. I asked the board for a three-year commitment, which I'm definitely going to honor.

[Tell us] more about how your experience from the time you were a student to a teacher to a principal prepared you for this role.

I think without a doubt one element which is absolutely needed to be an administrator is to be a teacher for a long period of time. ... Every day I spent as a classroom teacher, I honed my skills to be an effective administrator. ... You really understand what it takes to come to work every day and give your 'A game' for these kids.

... Frankly, I feel like without that, how could you lead people unless you've done it yourself? ... Once you get 20 to 30 years of experience, you start seeing [how] you can help the other teachers. In many ways I felt like I was mentoring a lot of the teachers at Horace Mann because they would come to me for advice.

In my specific case, being from Beverly Hills and growing up here and knowing people in the community and them knowing me was such an advantage. ... I was a student, I was a teacher, I was a parent here. I've literally been there, done that, got the T-shirt. And there's nothing like actually experiencing it. ...

It was a combination of my classroom experience, as well as my background of being a Beverly Hills kid that made me very site specific. I have no illusions of ever being an administrator anywhere else. This is our district. Except for college and my first five years of life, I've spent every day in this district. ...

More than halfway through your first school year as superintendent, what ... has been the biggest challenge so far?

There are so many things happening in our district [and] modernization on top of everything makes for a very full day. Obviously, we want to always improve our academics. We always want to make sure that we're keeping things nice and safe for our kids. Our buildings students, our staff, and I think anyone who goes or works in BHUSD is still lucky to be here.

Speaking of construction, what's the status of the new building at Horace Mann?

At Horace Mann, Building B is our brand new one. That will come online finished and completed this fall and we'll move kids into our new facilities. Through board direction, we'll cordon off Building A, which is the original Horace Mann building facing Charleville, and we'll spend one year [renovating the inside]. ... During that time we'll also abate and demolish the round building and the middle-school building, which will add 10,000 square feet of playground space, and we expect to be the first school add Dick Douglas. ... What I saw out of them was an inner strength and a vision that they wanted to see through. ... Rather than a top-down management like, 'OK, I'm at the mountain top and here's what we're going to do,' they came up with the idea [and] vetted it out. They involved the board, the community, the teachers, students, everybody. They were able to form a consensus and get a lot of their ideas through for the greater good of the district.

Horace Mann's brand new Building B is nearing completion and is expected to open this fall

There was always a quiet strength about Mr. Peters but a friendliness and one in which you held him in such high regard. I still remember when I was hired. At that time you had to come see Mr. Peters to get final approval even though I had already gone through the interview process. When I went to see him, my knees were literally shaking, but it was wonderful and I remember what he said to me: 'Steve, you sound so enthusiastic about teaching and I don't ever want you to forget it because from time to time you'll run into teachers who don't feel the same way. Don't let them get you down.'

Over the years, you've taught a number of children of former students. What's that been like?

That's [an] absolute joy of my life. When I was at Horace Mann I had two teachers that I had hired ... that were former students of mine [Afi Delijani and Viviana Ostrze-ga]. I had a couple of instructional aides, [Jennifer Gottstein and Erika Wu.] who I taught when they were five years old in kindergarten. They have their kids going to Horace Mann and two of them [have] children [at] Beverly. That type of connection is just invaluable. ... I know that the kids really get a kick out of it that their parents were taught by Mr. Kessler, 'Coach' and everything that everybody calls me. ... Overall, I just could not have been happier [about] the fact that I get to be with all these great kids all these years.

Back to what Ken Peters said when you were hired, ... how have you managed to [maintain your enthusiasm] over all of these years?

... I thought the pinnacle for me was to get a teaching job in Beverly Hills. No—I got to be a principal and the superintendent. There is literally not a day that goes by that I don't think ... that I am in Mr. Peters' office. ... I'm so respectful of what I have been given here. I feel so deeply honored that I am the first superintendent that's a product of our school district.

... Everybody says 'Steve, you're always so up. You have such youthful enthusiasm.' It's really not corny, and I really believe this in my heart, but when you go to work liking what you do, you wake up with a bounce in your step.

I guess I was made to do this. It's the only way I can look at it because even a couple of years ago when I said I was going to retire, there was that little voice inside me going, 'Are you sure Steve?'

"I feel so deeply honored that I am the first superintendent that's a product of our school district."

— Steve Kessler '71

are old. They're all built between 1900 and 1929, and they do need to be modernized, but as we all know, that has created a lot of friction amongst our community and our school district.

The other thing is I'm trying very hard to mend the relationship between our city and our school district. To me they are hand in hand. ... We now have regular technology meetings between the district and city, [as well as regular meetings with Recreation and Parks]. ... We will continue our liaison meetings between the president and vice president of the board and myself and the mayor and the vice mayor and all the city officials.

We're always trying to promote the good things we're doing here but taking hard looks at things that we can improve on. Again, it makes for quite a busy day, but I don't think it's anything that's insurmountable. I do believe in our completely modernized by the end of 2017/beginning of 2018.

... At Beverly, the idea is to redo Buildings B1, the math patio, B2, the main hallway, both the first and second floor, as you're standing on Moreno looking across the grass and the Peters auditorium. ... [EDITOR'S NOTE: BHUSD officials say the KL Peters Auditorium, which closed last year, is unlikely to reopen until campus construction is complete in 2018. BHUSD is also working on plans for the Beverly Vista, El Rodeo and Hawthorne campuses.]

[During a recent interview on Beverly Hills View, you identified [Ken Peters] and Sol Levine as strong past leaders of BHUSD. How has their leadership style influenced your own?

There have been a number of very good superintendents, but the ones I really worked under were Ken Peters, Sol Levine, and I will

Lois Mullins Rafferty S'31 Lois is 101 years old and still has a few marbles left. She's glad she went to BHHS and always enjoyed the teachers, especially in history (Miss Helms) and music. She's not sure of the music teacher's name and even though Lois couldn't carry a tune in a basket, he and his wife liked her enough to take her with them on trips. When she takes her family past her high school, they are really impressed and think it's beautiful.

Helen Gaynia McWaid '37 Helen lives at the Wesleyan Rehab in Georgetown, Texas near her daughter and her family.

Paul DeBaugh S'38 Paul says hello to any and all S'38 classmates.

1940

Harry F. Perry S'40 Harry's best pals at Beverly, John Woodward and Jack Herbst, have passed away, as has his little brother, John Richard Perry '48, in May. His brother was 84 and Harry will be 93 in July. God bless you all.

Robert Wolff W'40 Robert is still doing a bit of traveling. It's been 76 years since he left BHHS, whew!

Barbara, his wonderful wife, and he celebrated 70 years of marriage in 2015. They have four children, 13 grands and nine greats (at last count). Time flies when you're having fun!

Mary Pabst Young '40 Mary is still living in the house where she moved in 1968. Her youngest daughter and her family live across the street. Her youngest grandchild is a freshman at UCSD. She always looks forward to Highlights!

Ariel S. Compton-Cruce '41 Ariel remembers her years at BHHS with pleasure. She was Ariel Klein, then Ariel Compton, and now Ariel Compton-Cruce since her marriage to Richard Cruce in 1983. Her future began with Mr. Williams' biology class, followed by college, medical school and psychoanalysis at the Southern California Psychoanalytical Institute. Since retiring in 2009, she has written her memoirs, Ariel's Life, and, Couple's Therapy: A Do It Yourself Guide to a Better Relationship. She has also published a book of her mother's poetry, Studies: Joint Memories, and is now trying to become a poet on her own. She would like to hear from anyone who remembers her and sends good wishes to all.

Sybil Friedenthal S'41 Sybil had a very busy year. She and her daughters and son-in-law had an exciting Mediterranean cruise in the spring and also enjoyed their visits to Colorado, one in June and the other in November. In January, she was honored by the University of Houston Moores School of Music and will be honored by the Houston Symphony in April. She is still involved with a number of education and civic organizations so she has an exciting life. She sends regards to all her classmates and BHHS.

Carol Jean Moses Grant S'41 Carol Jean's macular degeneration is her only ailment in her 91-plus years. She still enjoys her mother-daughter weekends with her three beautiful and fun daughters. They usually go to Southern California to visit with a couple of classmates. Highlights is so welcome and interesting. Keep up the good work!

Carolyn Roos Olsen S'41 Carolyn is enjoying life with friends and family and hanging out with some other BHHS alumni in their 90s! She would like to hear from other class members at carolynro@roadrunner.com.

Audrey J. Burge S'42 Audrey is alive in her condo and drives to classes and events in her zippy Camry. Go Ducks!

Patricia Young Sargeant S'42 Patricia loves it when you call the bank for personal info and they ask you what high school you attended. She's so happy to say BHHS! What great memories to recall. As her class ages and fewer of them are around to brag about their youthful days at Beverly, their appreciation for the great education they received continues undiminished. She hopes the present student body will feel the same.

Lois Mullins Rafferty S'31, one of Beverly's oldest living graduates, celebrates her 101st birthday at her church. Rafferty, who lives in Santa Paula, says she still plays bridge two to three times a week. Lois is one of at least three Beverly grads who are 101 or older.

Remember the 1933 Long Beach earthquake?

Carol Herrick Jauregui S'46 wrote to Alumni Highlights with her memories of the big shaker:

I remember a picture you had on the front of the Highlights several years ago. I am not sure articles were included. Perhaps you would like to hear more from students who were at BHHS at that time (1933-1938). I am sure many have exciting tales to tell about their experiences having school in tents on the front lawn.

I was four years old when it happened, and we lived on Spalding Drive in an apartment. I remember seeing the tents on the front quad. All in all it, was an experience I will never forget. It was probably the most exciting experience of my life. I would certainly like to hear more from others.

What do you remember?

Carolyn Roos Olsen '41

Marian Miller Bonari '43 Marian was home for Christmas and then back to Mazatlán. All is good. The only person from her class that she hears from is June Teacher and she wishes to hear from more.

Bob Nate W'43 Bob's daughter and son had a surprise 90th birthday party for him on July 26, 2014 (see photo, p. 50). They invited 57 friends from all walks of life, family, gym members and six alumni from BHHS: Bill Chamberlin S'45 (track); Bob Fox W'46 (track); John Roesch W'43 (football); Mark Roberts S'44 (swimming); Stan Zimmerman W'43 (track); and Bob Lewis S'45 (basketball). They all looked great and ranged in age from 85 to 90. No friends from his three years in the Navy. They all lost their lives prior to being of age to vote. His friends from his 63 years in the toy and hobby industry were missing with the exception of Dave Gordon, another BHHS graduate, much younger and the best boss Bob ever had. His oldest friends, John Roesch, Dr. Bob Ivers, and Clarice Kendrick W'43 met in the 5th grade. Clarice is now blind and on oxygen, but he senses the big smile she has in her voice when talking to her on the phone. Life has been good to him.

Dick Rowson '43 Dick is approaching 90 and cannot say too much about the future except to say that what BHHS offered him 75 years ago set him on a path he has followed ever since—dream big, work hard and help others.

Jack Schultz W'43 Jack celebrated the big 90 on Aug. 31 with family and friends at the Burlingame Country Club. It was very festive and loving. He is still in pretty good shape (considering). He lost his beloved wife, Rhoda, almost two years ago. He is facing installation of a TAVR valve in his aortic valve and he is confident it will be successful and should get him a bit more time to enjoy this wonderful life. He would like to hear from buddies from the good old days at j@captjls.com.

Marian Semmelmeier Stoner W'43 Marian is in a wonderful retirement home and five-star residence. They have been remodeled and now have a theater, auditorium, bar, library, snack bar, restaurant, beauty parlor, game room and piano lounge. Who could ask for anything more? She is living it up!

Bonnie Butler '44 Bonnie loves having her sister, Joan Cox McKenna, so close. They live across the street from each and get together very often.

Eugene Corman '44 and Nan Morris Corman '49 Eugene is still recovering from two big back surgeries so he and Nan are not going to their place in New York, which is upsetting him. Nan is not involved in anything just now.

Otis Healy '44 Otis is married and has four children, 10 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren by his deceased wife, Betty Santley Healy '46. He also has three stepchildren by his wife, Joanne Akerman Healy. They live in Newport Beach and are enjoying life following 40 years in the investment business. He's retired from Smith Barney & Co. and was past president of the USC Alumni Association. He's also past president of the Laguna Playhouse and founder of Troy Co. He is currently a board member of the Hoag Hospital Irvine.

Natasha Chapiro Josefowitz '44 Natasha's idea of being 90 on her next birthday does not compute. She still feels the same as she did in BHHS. She is working full time, writing a twice monthly column for the La Jolla Village News and is a regular blogger on Huffington Post. Her website is: natashas-words.com. She is a management consultant and still has many clients and she's a frequent guest on TV and radio. (She got her start at KMPC Miss Touton's radio class.) Natasha is inviting classmates to come visit her at White Sands Retirement Community for lunch. She can be reached at natashajo@gmail.com or 858-456-2366.

Arnold Seidel '44 Arnold is the first of three generations of BHHS graduates, which includes two sons, David '77 and Craig '79, and grandson Ronnie '11. He never left Beverly Hills, or more correctly, his home has never been outside Beverly Hills. He and his wife, Joan, were married in 1957 and now live on North Bedford Drive. His charitable interests are varied. He was the founding chairman of the Friends of Greystone in 2001 and is now currently serving on the following boards: the Friends of the Griffith Park Observatory (FOTO), Music Center Leadership Council of the Music Center and the Young Musicians Foundation. Both he and his wife serve on the local and national boards of the American Technion Society and the International Board of Technion. The Technion is the University in Haifa, Israel, which stresses engineering and medicine. Arnold is chairman of Morton Seidel & Co., Inc., a broker/dealer started in 1925 by his father, Morton. This is their 90th year of family management with clients of six generations of the firm. If you have any questions about Beverly Hills, feel free to ask him.

Wiley Caldwell W'45 Wiley finds it hard to believe it has been 70 years since he left Beverly. He still has many vivid and happy memories, but few classmates to share them with. He didn't see anything in the obituary column about his best friend, Kenny Brittingham (see p. 56). They had dinner in Newport a few years ago and shared memories. They met in second grade at El Rodeo. Wiley was class president in '45, a Knight, and lettered in track and football. He lived with his wife and four kids in Pacific Palisades for 14 years before moving to Kenilworth, Ill. about three miles north of the Northwestern University campus in 1970. They have been married 65 years and have had a very full life.

Bill Campbell S'45 Bill says: hum. Another great-grandchild on the way; two more annual presents—birthday and Christmas. What else is new? (But he is blessed!)

Aaron Eshman '45 Aaron is still active as wealth manager and senior vice president at Morgan Stanley. He and his wife are celebrating their 65th wedding anniversary this year. They have three children, all successful, and six grandchildren, graduates of UC San Diego, UC Berkeley, Duke, Georgetown and NYU. They are enjoying life living in Santa Monica with many friends and family.

John Patrick Ford '45 Pat is pleased to transfer his private papers, photos and books as a collection on early American settlement in California, historic Yosemite and John Muir into the UCSD Special Collections Library. He also joined the White Knights to save San Diego Opera and served on the search committee to hire a new general director.

Maeann Struchen Garty S'45

Maeann is still traveling on cruises and walking most mornings at Mission Bay Park in San Diego.

Evelyn Goldberg Gladstone S'45

Evelyn is still living in East Lansing, Mich. and has survived 65 winters (she met the challenge!). 2015 was a sad as well as a happy year. She became a great-grandma! The sad part was the death of her sister, June W'43 (see p. 55). They were best friends as well as sisters. June married Paul Ehrlich, a wonderful man, who Evelyn considered her brother. June, a war bride (WWII), wrote a book, His Silver Wings, which Evelyn has sent to BHHS to be put in the section of the library alongside all the other BHHS authors. Evie looks forward every year to read cover to cover the Highlights. She marvels that being a graduate of BHHS means so much to her "book of life!"

Marilyn Granas '45

Marilyn is still living in Beverly Hills but can't quite believe all the changes that have taken place in our "village" over the years. Whatever became of the 5 & 10 cent store on Beverly Drive, the beautiful movie theaters, Thrifty Drug store with its soda fountain, and Simones Drive-In? It's sure not the same little town, but she still loves it.

Dr. Barbara Ann Jeffries Hall '45

Dr. Hall is busy writing legal local history. This year the history panels for Covina's newest park celebrate the Covina Valley citrus industry. She is enjoying traveling with children and grandchildren, and at home turning two acres of lawns into drought-tolerant meadows.

Arnold Kornfield S'45 Arnold didn't go on a trip this year. They became great-grandparents in June, he for the third time (a girl), and his wife, Harriet, for the first time (a boy). Next year they have a cruise and land trip booked—San Pedro to Vancouver (six days) and a return train trip stopping at Seattle and Portland to see his granddaughter and new great-granddaughter—then home.

Leon Myers W'45 Leon is still running around Vegas for poker tournaments, Paris, and Nice with Valerie. He's out of touch with alumni, except Stan Bachrack '45 and Phyllis Minick '47. Anyone left? Contact him at gjogv@yahoo.com.

Herbert (Bud) Constine S'46 Herbert is still enjoying life in Marina del Rey and is still playing tennis, although a bit slower every year. He travels out of the country and always enjoys reading about old classmates and catching up on what they are doing.

Harris Katleman '46 Harris has three children and two are in the entertainment business. Steven is a partner at Greenberg Taurig and Michael is a producer-director. His latest show on CBS is Zoo, of which he is the executive producer. Lisa is the head of a tennis school. He has seven grandchildren and four great-grandsons. He resigned as president and CEO of 20th Century Fox Television after 15 years. He is a consultant for three entertainment companies. Ten months ago he met Jane Booke, a graduate of BHHS, and she is now Harris' significant other. They spent August in Positano, Italy, which is heaven!

Pierre Kern S'46 Pierre observes the weeks and months seem to go by faster all the time. Both Lindy and he are doing well except for his tennis game, which he still plays lousy! He cannot believe his two sons, Ric and Brad, are 59 and 58 years old and both are talking about retiring! Pierre's oldest granddaughter just gave birth to his first great-grandchild. His oldest grandson, Ryan, is an anchor man and newscaster at the Reno NBC station. Brad's son, Matthew, is 6'5", just turned 16, is a sophomore and is first-string varsity basketball center at Viewpoint High in Calabasas. Brad's daughter is going on 10. Life has been good to all of us. Lindy's son, Tiernan, is a Lt. Colonel in the Army and is currently stationed for one year in Korea. Her younger son, Mike, is a big wheel with IBM and her daughter, Diana, owns a store for green furniture with her partner in Carpinteria, The Porch.

Armond "Buddy" Lisle S'46 Bud and Kathryn continue to live in Indian Wells and enjoy friends and family. Bud lost his 99-year-old sister in January 2015, his last direct link to his childhood. Perhaps they can make Maui in the fall.

Carol Strauss Somers S'46 Carol's highlight of 2015 was a six-week visit to Sydney, Australia to visit her son and three adult grandchildren. She had a great time. It was the middle of summer and the weather was perfect! She couldn't ask for more.

Sally Green Frank W'47 Sally is enjoying the retired desert life. Her husband, Ralph, passed away at 93. She still drives her car, goes to the symphony and the theater. She lives in a great place along with Joan Halpren Ortiz S'46 and has telephone conversations with Barbara Fox S'47 who lives in San Diego. Life is good!

Susan Redding Gettle S'47 Susan and Joan Junge McGovern S'47 are still best friends from back in their days at Horace Mann. They wonder if any of their Horace Mann classmates are living in the Los Angeles area. It would be fun if they would write in and tell about their lives.

E. Tim Hampton W'47 Tim is still living in the Juanita Beach section of Kirkland, Wash. His wife, Diane, now deceased, used to hang out there while in grade school and now he's there in a nice apartment near the beach with a pool, beautiful grounds and even a salmon stream running through it. The weather is typical for Washington with lots of rain in the lowlands and plenty of snow in the mountains for the skiers. It was fun last summer having a family reunion at the apartment with most of the families from Alaska and Washington attending. His health is still holding at very good.

Sue Evans Jarman S'47 Sue says just in case there is anyone who wants to hear once again about her appreciation for valued education and continued friends, she'd like to say thank you for both. Hardly a day goes by she doesn't recall BH-

HS's precious lifetime gifts to her.
Louise Gilmore Kermode '47 Louise has been living full time in Palm Desert for the past 21 years. It is God's country. She plays tennis at Sunrise Country Club in Rancho Mirage and is in various organizations as a volunteer. She follows the football games and went to the disastrous Cal-UCLA game!

Hilde Carsten Koessler W'47 Hilde observes their group is getting small, but the friendships are just as deep.

Ann Reiss Lane '47 Ann had a big travel year: to India, including Kashmir (bucket list No. 1) and to see eldest granddaughter graduate from University of Vermont Medical School. She is still married to Bert 66 years later.

Joan Cox McKenna '47 Joan's sister, Bonnie Cox Butler '44, and her husband live just across the street from her in San Diego. It is a perfect situation!

Mary Downs Mowry W'47 Mary is comfortably settled in a lovely retirement community in Chula Vista where she moved after her husband, Russell, passed on.

Eleanor Bowen Parrish '47 Eleanor and her high school boyfriend, Dick Robbins '46, went on a 10-day hiking trip to Utah in May to see all the wonders, such as Zion Canyon and Bryce Canyon. In October, they went to Kona, Hawaii along with friends to stay at the beautiful home of Barbara and Jack Cameron '46.

Jack Shoemaker S'47 Jack's grandchildren have become a very special part of his life as they make their way through college and into the real world. Their education includes medicine, engineering, computer science, construction and health care. Fortunately, they have all found their place and are working hard to be successful. It sure is a lot tougher now than when we came along some 60 years ago. He and his wife have just been blessed with their first great-grandchild.

Audrey Bledsoe Speights S'47 Audrey continues staying busy organizing voter registration, volunteering to assist the homeless at the L.A. Mission and actively supporting Hillary Clinton's campaign. Audrey adores her 10 great-grandchildren and her one great-great-grandson. She looks forward to Highlights each year.

James Spitz W'47 James say all's well in Tarzana. He's trying hard to stay healthy and has been married 65 years. They now have nine great-grandchildren. He's looking forward to Bob Fox and Sandy Bothman putting on luncheons as in the past!

Lynn McPheeters Casty '48 Lynn has appreciated Highlights over the past years. She is living in the Northern California redwoods with her three children, seven grandchildren and many animals, both domestic and wild. She may be far from the Beverly Hills life, but she loves where she lives.

Stanley Feldman S'48 Stanley advises all is well and beautiful in the Pacific Northwest. He's enjoying every day and sends regards to all his friends and classmates.

Robert Marx W'48 Robert continues as chairman of the board of governors of the City of Hope and has been for 20 years. His wife, Gilda, was awarded Lifetime Achievement Award and inducted to the National Fitness Hall of Fame.

Robert Moher S'48 Robert Moher S'48 Robert's wife died three years ago. They had been married over 52 years. The good news is that he is about to become a great-grandfather, his first "great." His three kids keep him busy. He travels a bit and life goes on.

Tom Newmark '48 Tom has done lots of travel this year; maybe he'll even see you on the way!

Margot Wiesinger Smith '48 Margot, at 84, is a retired video maker/social scientist, but still activist working for peace and social justice. She discovered ResearchGate, a website where she could list all her research papers, and to her amazement, even though old, they are being downloaded and cited. She cannot travel anymore, but is having proxy fun funding travel for the grandkids. Two are going to Italy this year. She had a rough 2014 health-wise, but survived. Her youngest grandchild graduates from high school this year. When your kids are talking retirement, you know you're old. She still enjoys living in Berkeley, the People's Republic.

Frank G. Cavnac '49 Frank and his wife, Happy, celebrated their 60th anniversary in 2015. Their two children (56 and 58) and five grandchildren were part of the festivities. The year 2015 was the year of another important anniversary, the 70th anniversary of the year that Frank entered BHHS. He lives in San Diego and keeps in touch with some of his fellow classmates and HI-Y Club (Etruscans) members: Ted Grossman, Al Barry, Tom Van Sant, Grant Peniston, Brad Jeffries and Bob Sherman. One of Frank's major challenges is to drink as much of his aging collection of California Cabernets as soon as possible before they, and he, go over the hill.

Betty Marx Davies '49 Betty says Newport Beach reminds her of Beverly Hills in the '40s. They moved there from Benedict Canyon in 1963 and have loved it the same as they loved Beverly Hills.

Harriet Ephraim '49 Harriet says hi to everyone. She is living in a wonderful retirement community called La Costa Glen in Carlsbad. Her two sons live nearby in San Clemente. She goes to exercise class in the a.m. and plays duplicate bridge three times a week, plus she takes bridge lessons twice a week. She goes to movies once or twice a week. Thanks to her son who insisted she move there she is having a great time. (Thanks, Brian!)

B. James Lieberman '49 James just finished 45 consecutive days of running 2.5 miles every day! He is living in Roseville, near Sacramento. He loves the clean air and NO pot holes!

Jan Elselder Ponder '49 Jan and her husband, Harry Gamber, sent out a picture in a Christmas card to show they are still alive. He is still sailing his boat and golfing at 87; she is painting with pastels, taking workshops and showing her work. She gave a demonstration of painting with encaustics at the McLean Art Society in November. Jan turned 84 in January and is having fun.

Betsy and Frank Ulf '49 Betsy (Roberts) and Frank began dating at age 14 and celebrated their 63rd anniversary on Valentine's Day 2016. A remarkable accomplishment, indeed! They loved their years at Beverly and can't believe that the rich memories they shared then are still very much with them today! Their health is good—a few "bumps" along the way, but they are upright and that is amazing! They are saddened over the loss of many dear high school friends.

Elaine Casey '50 Elaine and her husband are really retired now. They sold their RV two years ago and are now permanently living in the desert. RVing was a wonderful way to go for them; lots of visiting friends who have moved away as well as visiting a daughter who moved to Denver 10 years ago. Elaine doesn't miss the work though. Summers have not been too bad so far, but time will tell.

Nancy Dillon '50 Nancy's 65th reunion last fall on The Queen Mary was excellent. She took a U.S. Lighthouse Society trip to Belgium and the Netherlands in the spring and Maine and Canada in the fall. She's still climbing lighthouses!

Estelle Emerson Handler '50 Estelle took her family on a Pacific Coast cruise—Vancouver to Los Angeles in May. While on board, she booked an East Coast cruise—New York to Montreal in September. She didn't realize she'd miss her 65th reunion! Sorry!

Howard E. Mason, Jr. '50 Howard says all had a good time at the 65th reunion in Long Beach. It was good to see and visit with longtime friends.

Chuck Murray '50 Chuck was extremely sorry to be notified of the passing of Bruce Rogers '50, a truly nice guy. Sincere condolences to Sheri.

Edmund Sewell '50 Edmund is still enjoying the warmth and beauty of the Sonoran Desert. He wishes happiness and healthful years to his 1950 classmates.

Harriet Cutler Sobel '50 Harriet has lived in her present home since 1971 (through two quakes), where she and her husband, Al, raised their three sons. They have nine grandchildren and one great-granddaughter. Over the years they have traveled to Alaska, England and France. Now she enjoys her painting, stitching and crafting. Her husband is an accomplished wood turner in his spare time. Their son, Craig, has become a spectacular wood turner, turning out beautiful quality pieces. Their son, Marc, is into electronics, and their youngest son, Doug, worked his skills in leather, decorating belts, gun holsters and saddles. The acorn doesn't fall far from the tree, does it!

Joe Benford '51 Joe is now a widower and living in Simi Valley.

Florence Barnett Chinskey '51 Florence is looking forward to the birth of her ninth great-grandchild.

Joan Rubin Coakley '51 Joan and her husband, Stephen, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary in August 2015. She is looking forward to her 65th reunion in April!

Roberta Flam Finkle '51 Roberta is looking forward to her reunion luncheon in celebration of their 65th year after graduation. She feels they have "lost" at least six classmates since their 60th reunion and since they are "shrinking" both in numbers and size, they must enjoy the friends and faces still among them.

Carole Wayne Foran '51 Carole is still living in Beverly Hills on Elm Drive. She's been there since 1971. She's looking forward to their 65th reunion. She's been married to Bud for 62 years, has four grown children and four grandkids. Grandson Ian makes the fourth doctor in the immediate family (they now have their own clinic) and one lawyer, Gina, who graduates law school in May. All is well and thank you BHHS for a great education!

Myrna Hyman Goldstick '51 Myrna wishes a happy 2016 to all and she's looking forward to the reunion luncheon.

Phil Jaffe '51 Phil enjoys the 55-plus Four Seasons retirement community in Beaumont. He is still in touch with friends from BHHS.

Betsy Feldberg Kaplan '51 Betsy has lived in the same house for 55 years. They have black Angus, burros, chickens, Dutch rabbits, tortoises and a dog. It's a ranch where they also raise and harvest various fruit and vegetables. She enjoys seeing and being part of Beverly Hills when visiting, which is quite often. Keeping up with BHHS alumni and receiving Highlights is a joy.

Jeanne Curry Laye '51 Jeanne finished another tax year successfully and headed off to the Caribbean with her son for a few days of fun in the sun. In January 2015, she took a great trip to New Zealand and in November, her son, Russ, and she planned to visit South Africa. She loves to travel and believes we should do all we can while we can and are in good health. Jeanne expected to see a number of classmates at the 60th Stanford reunion in the fall. Hi to all!

Art '51 and Peggy Stauffer '52 Art still keeps up with the guys in Class of '51, particularly the Corsairs, including his buddies from high school sports and others. Peggy loves reading about their past classmates. She chats with Lorraine Shahan Long and Barbara Merrill Stroup, but that seems to be it from high school days since the class reunion a few years ago. She hopes to visit with Nancy Wolvin Turnier in San Francisco in the near future.

Travel continues to include Guatemala where their daughter, Wendy, and her two girls, Celine and Chloe, have a lovely yoga retreat center on Lake Atitlan. Last summer, the whole family (all 13), including Wes, JoJo, Stefan, and Sean, Brad, Michelle, Connor and Cate planned to visit Yellowstone and spend a few days rafting, hiking, eating, etc., in the Grand Tetons. This was in effect a celebration of Peggy and Art's 55th anniversary. They send greetings to any and all classmates of both the '51 and '52 graduating class. It's a great ride, isn't it!

Shirley Seams Chestnut S'52 Shirley and husband Mike enjoy playing golf and she is in charge of their couples' golf group consisting of 30 couples. She is also active in Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

Nancy Wolvin Turnier '52 Nancy is fortunate to be enjoying good health and a good life in Rossmoor, a senior community in Walnut Creek. She is still savoring the memory of the wonderful reunion at Mumsie's house a couple of years ago—so many friends from the Class of '52! It really was an outstanding class of achievers and caring people.

Victoria Shuken Weisenberg '52 Victoria wonders what is going on with the '52 graduates. First of all, she has retired from teaching. Professor Weisenberg is no longer growing microbes or teaching cadavers. On top of that she received the Volunteer of the Year Award from Temple Jeremiah in Northbrook, Ill. But, the biggest news is that after a dozen years of being a widow, she remarried! Her new husband was actually her kid's pediatrician so she's known him over 45 years. She did not change her name, however. On a sad note, her brother, Charles '54, died in December 2013, after the bravest battle with cancer possible. Susan Horwits Brody '53 Susan's family is well and happy. She feels so fortunate to live near so many of her friends from high school. They see a lot of each other and it is a comfort to have friendships of over 60 years. Living in glorious sunshine also helps.

Douglas Epstein '53 Douglas reminisced about the time Peter Shayne convinced several of them to go to Pierce College. It was spring and the new lambs were coming out. On their arrival Peter had one in his arms and they all thought it was very cute till it messed his jacket!

Betty Ann Grant '53 Betty Ann's message this year is a big "thank you" to all of her classmates for their donations and best wishes when she lost her mobile home in the Aug. 24, 2014 Napa earthquake. She and her dog were forced to move four times in four months. After these difficult months FEMA came in with help, but the rent for temporary housing was helped by her generous classmates. All is well now and there is a light at the end of the tunnel for her family. There is a new mobile on the same lot and she and her dog are loving it. God bless all of you from the Class of 1953!

Susanne Kauffman Heichman '53 Susanne's husband has retired (at age 80) and they travel and spend time with their three children and five grandchildren.

Howard S. Hirsch '53 Howard is still snowboarding and playing golf. Life is good. He has fabulous grandchildren and has been married to Ruth for 56 years. He's been retired about eight years and doesn't miss working. Happy 80th to all his classmates!

Barbara Lee Kozberg '53 Barbara experienced another wonderful year full of gratitude as most of her class turned 80 years old. She and Marty have enjoyed the longtime friendship of classmates and feel sadly the loss of Roberta Hill Fromberg who gave so much of herself in keeping their class records up to date and informing everyone what was going on through her valuable time by emailing all classmates. They are realizing she is irreplaceable. On the bright side, Barbara's three daughters have produced seven grandchildren, which have now turned into 13 with their marriages. She is proud to mention she has two great-grandsons.

Anne Taggart Tunzi '53 Anne is keeping busy with various projects (music, art and herbal gardening) in beautiful southern Oregon.

Peter H. Artzt '54 Peter turned 78 on May 7, 2015. His sweet wife of 40 years, Marian (Mim) passed away last year at 83. They have six grown kids and 13 grandkids. He just retired two weeks ago (for the third time). He had a hip replacement in June—first operation since he had tonsils removed when he was eight years old, so no complaints. He loved his 60th reunion and hopes to see all again and sends love to all his buds.

Lois Glabman Davidson '54 Lois just celebrated her 60th anniversary and lives happily in Kansas City with her husband.

Phyllis Korentajer Dimant '54 Phyllis exclaims: What can I say? Another year older! Her great-grand No. 8 arrived in September 2015 and No. 9 and 10 are due in February and April—wow! She visited Israel in October. What a fabulous country!

Leda Carroll Goldsmith '54 Leda has been married for 57-plus years to the same man! They have two great daughters—one is an author and the other is a philanthropist. She has two phenomenal grandkids, one a sophomore at Columbia University and the other is a junior at Horace Mann. She asks herself what more could she want?

Valerie Kay '54 Valerie is enjoying retirement and would be delighted to be contacted by classmates: vskey613@aol.com.

Stan King '54 Stan went to Havana, Cuba in January 2016 with Mr. and Mrs. Mike Franks '54 and Michael Berman '54 and Renee Sperling, as well as two other couples. It was a terrific experience to see the wonderful sights and try the terrific food at paladores (homes that people turn into restaurants). The country will be interesting once capitalism takes hold. The sight of the 1950 cars in exotic colors brought back wonderful memories of our BHHS days. Stan is still working in the brokerage business at Oppenheimer & Co. in Westwood and is still working with the Beverly High cross country and tack & field teams. Life is good at age 79.

James Loos '54 James is still teaching orthodontics at USC.

Barbara Eisendrath Platt '54 Barbara's warm memories from BHHS will remain in her heart for her lifetime. Those years provided the foundation for a lifetime of positive experiences to follow. After graduating from UCLA with her teaching credential she worked in LAUSD and then substituted in the BHUSD. She married in 1958 and started her family in 1962. Regretfully, she divorced in 1968. However, shortly thereafter she was blessed to reconnect with an old high school friend, Steve Platt '52, who was living in Palm Springs and also a divorcee. They married, blended their families happily and enjoyed 30 wonderful years until he passed away in 2001. Palm Springs was still a small town in those days, and they both became involved in the community, local charities and organizations. The community has changed and grown beyond imagination and she is still very active. She does work with the local McCallum Theatre and the Palm Springs Art Museum and is extremely involved in their expanding Jewish community and Israel. Barbara also takes pleasure in walking, hiking and golfing. A priority in her life are her 13 grandkids who love to visit their "Baba" and she thoroughly enjoys their company. Four of them are BHHS graduates.

Norman '54 and Gloria Stolaroff Ross '56 Norman says it was nice to be a part of their 60th reunion and see all the familiar faces and he hopes he will recognize everyone at their next reunion. 2015 started off with a trip to the east to visit their son whose job with Fox was relocated to NYC, and also to see their granddaughter in her first off-Broadway production, One Day. Of course they had to pick one of the worst winters on record for the visit. Meanwhile, Gloria is still busy with her jewelry business.

Linda O'Day Vilas '54 Linda's life is pretty good for "us older folks." They've lived in the beautiful San Francisco Bay Area for 48 years. Both their daughters live no more than 15 minutes away, which is special. They enjoy the excellent San Francisco Opera performances and regularly cross the Bay to see the exhibitions at the Legion of Honor, the De Young and the Asian Art Museum. They will come south to see the new Broad before too long. Their six grandchildren are all over 18 years old as of this year. Time doth fly! The oldest grandson graduated UC Davis in June. Another grandson is a sophomore at Texas A&M on an engineering scholarship; a granddaughter is a freshman at Ole Miss and just pledged the same sorority as her mom and aunt, along with 146 other girls! They do things big in the South! Linda and Clark still very much enjoy traveling, mostly abroad and with groups now, not independently. They will go on a river cruise from Brussels to Amsterdam next spring. Their Border Terrier rescue, Lola, and West Highland terrier, Robbie, keep them walking miles every week. Hi to all classmates.

Peggy Hansen '55 Peggy's 60th class reunion was a lot of fun and she even acquired a new pen pal!

Toby Klasser Marantz '55 Toby has her PhD and is selling real estate in the desert. She can be reached at

Craig Zobelein '55 Craig's three years at BHHS were wonderful and memorable. He graduated from USC with a degree in electrical engineering in 1960 and spent 15 years as a design engineer in the aerospace industry. A signal processor he helped to design for the Surveyor Program is still sitting on the moon! This career was followed by 15 years as a teacher in the Conejo Valley Unified School District. He also served as a park ranger in Wildwood Regional Park, Thousand Oaks. Following that, he spent 11 years managing a multimillion-dollar investment corporation in Los Angeles. For decades, Craig has performed in community theater, including many years with the Conejo Players. He has done silent movie accompaniments, fundraising concerts for local arts organizations and many solo performances. He is also the co-executive producer (with his wife) of a documentary, The Walt Disney Concert Hall Organ, which was recently aired on the KLCS public broadcasting station and is available through Amazon. His wife, Jennifer, is past president of New West Symphony. They live in Thousand Oaks and have two grown children and four grandchildren. He is still waiting for his residuals from the oil well though!

Peter Behrendt '56 Peter is looking forward to getting his normal 70 days of skiing again this season. He just returned from a weeklong bike trip in the Dolomites, and an earlier trip to the Galapagos and the Ecuadorian jungle. And, now he finally has grandchildren!

John O. Fox '56 John was shocked to hear of Shep Cutler's death last year. They were friends since the 4th grade at El Rodeo. Only a few years ago John's wife, Gretchen, and he were hosted by Shep and his wife, Joni, at their home in Columbia, SC, where he was full of life and funny as ever. With great wealth from an insurance business he created, he was enormously generous with friends and charities. Their class voted Shep most likely to succeed. He earned it! John has now retired from 25 years as a visiting professor at Mount Holyoke College, where he taught seminars on U.S. tax policy and poverty in the U.S., subjects closely related. He still writes on tax policy issues, but over the last two years he has been giving one-hour talks to high school juniors and seniors to teach them how they might think about fair and sensible tax policies, and why the subject is crucial to their future. So far—after many talks in Massachusetts and in Southern California where they winter—so good. He explained his initiative earlier this year in the Harvard Law Record, a weekly paper distributed to all Harvard law students and faculty. Among the most rewarding talks were Roel Hinojosa's U.S. government classes at Beverly, in which students are required to think critically about the great questions this gifted teacher poses.

David Friedman '56 David is still doing his thing with photography worldwide. Retire? Never, he says, until they plant me!

David Gross '56 David's wife, Rosalyn, and he are blessed to have their health, each other and good friends (many of whom go back to his days at Horace Mann). He has worked and continues to work part time in construction management since he retired in 2012. He sends regards to all his classmates.

Bennett Kerns '56 Bennett is still practicing law in Santa Monica and still has his hair (mostly brown!).

Martin Krell '56 Marty and Charlene celebrated their 50th anniversary last year with a trip to New York and Israel. This year they traveled to England and Italy. They continue to live on a ranch in Santa Clarita with 30 chickens, nine goats, a horse named Red and two cats. They enjoy frequently visiting their four daughters and 10 grandchildren who live in Southern California. Marty is a colonel in the California State Military Reserve and assists in neurosurgery two days a week. Charlene provides nursing services to charter schools three days a week.

Laurence Lesser '56 Laurence saw the release of his recording of the Bach: Complete Cello Suites last year. It was done in August 2014 in the magnificent New England Conservatory Jordan Hall. More about that and other things at his new website: www.laurencelesser.com.

Anthony B. Sokol, M.D. '56 Anthony retired in 2014 after practicing aesthetic plastic surgery in Beverly Hills for 44 years. He and his wife, Barbara, travel several times a year to Third World countries with Operation Smile. During each of these missions, over 100 children born with cleft lip and palate deformities are treated. During the past 20 years they have volunteered on 40 missions in 28 countries. They were recently honored by the Beverly Hills Health and Safety Commission for these volunteer efforts. The Sokols live in Beverly Hills. Their three daughters attended El Rodeo and BHHS, and three of their six grandsons now go to El Rodeo.

Roberta Jarvis Walley '56 Roberta's class is planning their 60th reunion for October 2016. Sadly, her brother, Lew Jarvis '50, passed away suddenly while planning with his classmates for their reunion.

Patricia Woods Walsh '56 Patricia says marriage agrees with her so she did it again Oct. 1, 2005—the third time is a charm. Her husband Frank and she moved to the beauty of Oregon. They adore the gracious quiet beauty there and it is a lovely mellow retirement after 46 years of teaching, which she loved very much.

Joan Yeoman '56 Joan will mark 60 years since she graduated from BHHS this year. She thinks it's time for another casual reunion. Thanks to Marty Krell the last one was a blast. She's still the keeper of the list of classmates and would love to get your updates. She hopes the next get-together can all be done on email. Respond to jyeoman11@aol.com.

Arthur Kraus '57 Arthur has been elected to the board of directors for The Music Center.

Dennis Livingston '57 Dennis continues to write, promote and market his cabaret and jazz songs, which you can follow at facebook.com/dennislivingstonsongs. This includes his 2013 CD, The Stories In My Mind: The Songs of Dennis Livingston, a live recording of a revue of his work that ran at New York's Metropolitan Room. His biggest project for 2015 was to go public with another side of his musical endeavors. Some of his happiest memories of Beverly were as a flute player in the school orchestra (and piccolo in the marching band). Since then, he's developed a talent as an improvising jazz flutist, jamming with other musicians at informal gatherings. He's finally gone public as a performer, starting with formation of a new Boston-based band called The Alchemists, whose other members are among Boston's top jazz players devoted to the art of free form, genre-crossing, collective improvisation. Potions, their debut CD, was released last December and features melodic, improvised, inventive, original songs that are rooted in and weave together jazz, standards, Latin rhythms, Indian beats, chamber music and other genres. David invites everyone to follow their Facebook page, The Alchemists-Boston Band: facebook.com/thealchemistsbostonband/.

Jim Glabman '58 Jim and Barbara just celebrated their 50th anniversary and have been living in Newport Beach since 1979.

Nancy Bryson Helgans '58 Nancy celebrated 50 years of marriage in October by taking a barge trip on a canal in Burgundy, France. They spent another week visiting Normandy, Mont St. Michel and the Loire Valley. In June, they took a riverboat cruise on the Danube from Bucharest to Budapest. She's still playing golf, biking and working out. Nancy is blessed with good health, lots of friends, and a wonderful family in New York and California.

Tom '58 and Ann Moore '59 Ann and Tom continue to live in beautiful Yorba Linda. Tom plays golf twice a week, Ann plays bridge three times a week and the rest of the time is spent with 14 grandchildren and their dog, McTavish. Tom stays in touch with John Muff, Alice Blair Simmons, Jack Morgan, Stewart Roy, Dick Barton, Burt Rosenberg and Bill Marks enough to know what is going on in everyone's life. Ann continues to celebrate her birthday with Jeanine Torrance and Sue Cyns from Beverly Vista days. They both were pleased to see the article about the Beverly Vista Presbyterian church where, as youths, they spent many happy days in CE. They travel a couple of times each year and swear "this is the last big trip" (until the next one so it seems). They are blessed with good health, many friends and terrific high school memories, the most meaningful, of course, being that is where they met and fell in love—getting better each year!

Charlene and Marty Krell '56

Barbara and Anthony Sokol, M.D. '56

Jack Morgan S'58 Jack wanted to let all his friends and classmates know that his wife's dad passed away on Oct. 31, 2015 at the ripe old—but quite respectable—age of 97! He had a great life and really lived each year to its utmost.

Sanford B. Schulhofer, Jr. '58 Sanford has had numerous major surgeries culminating in the loss of both legs over the past 18 years. The good news is since receiving new prosthetics in October 2014 he is learning to walk once again. He enjoys looking through Highlights, which is his only way of being in touch with the classmates he met during his four years there. He's looking forward to the 60th class reunion in 2018.

A. Lee Walkup '58 Lee is in his 27th year with the Gay Men's Chorus of Los Angeles as a bass. He's in his 42nd year as a professional travel agent and from 2011 to 2016 he was a State Assembly delegate for the 50th District. He is presently chair of the Senior Advisory Board for the city of West Hollywood.

Nancy Schwartz Young '58

Nancy reports after two years in Venice, Fla., where her husband was an interim Unitarian Universalist minister (until the church found its new minister) they moved to Northridge, Calif. He is again a U.U. interim minister, this time at Emerson U.U. Church in Canoga Park. They're happy to be near their kids and grandkids who live in Hollywood and are happy to be near beaches with surf.

Baret Fink '59 Baret is practicing law in Century City with his son, Randall Fink.

Marsha Kerns '59 Marsha is enjoying life, is semi-retired and plays bridge.

John Melnik '59 John and his wife recently celebrated their 50th anniversary.

Bob Schirn '59 Bob's wife, Zanda, and he celebrated their 50th anniversary in September. Their children gave them a party and invited John and Judy Melnik who introduced them many years ago. He joined the district attorney's office in 1967 and still works there, although now part time. He hopes to hold out until 2017 and make it an even 50 years. He is the unofficial historian for the office and has prepared a series of lectures on some of the famous cases handled by them. He gives these lectures on cruise ships (over 30 times), at lunches, dinners and other venues. Former DA Steve Cooley and he have co-authored two books about cases handled by the office and they hope to get them published in the near future. He is blessed with two sons who married well and five beautiful granddaughters. He and his wife are enjoying life!

Stace Tackaberry '59 Stace and his wife, June, are in their 22nd year of living in the world-famous ski resort of Breckenridge, Colo. He was with a large Chicago paper mill for 28 years, the last six of which he was vice president of international operations. The company did business in 54 countries so, as a result, Stace was traveling out of the country a great deal of time. Currently he is on the Breckenridge Ski Patrol and June is a docent who guides walking tours through Breckenridge's historic mining district and does descriptive narrative writing for the blind through the National Captioning Institute. They have three children (two daughters and a son) and seven grandchildren, all of whom they are very proud. Their daughter, Jacqueline, lives in the San Francisco Bay area; the other daughter, Jennifer, lives in Seattle; and, their son Patrick, lives in a small Oregon coastal town.

1960

Thomas Fuchs '60 Thomas' novella, Digby's Hollywood Story, was published in December by Roundfire Books. His website is: thomasfuchswrites.com.

Paula Benjamin Little '60 Paula sadly announces that her sister, Janet Irene Benjamin Miller '59, died of pneumonia on June 18, 2015. She had a distinguished career in education.

Shelley Fraide PUNCHES '60 Shelley and her husband are trying to plan a move to Arizona—Michigan winters are brutal! She went to AZ in October for a granddaughter's wedding and loved the sunshine! She and her husband have been married 55 years and have 10 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren. She enjoys talking with Melanie N. Jolly whom she's known since they were about 6 years old—another BHHS grad.

Stephen Anthony Ross '60 Stephen writes, in 1960 under the direction of Coach Walter Puffer, four Normans on their varsity swim team tied an American record placing first in CIF finals at the Santa Monica City Junior College Swim Meet in their outdoor pool. Their time for the 200-yard medley relay was 2:45.5, which was not only a BHHS record, but also a CIF record earning all four swimmers a place as All America with honorary certification and patches for their letterman jackets. They are Steve Kern (backstroke), Steve Ross (butterfly with a 25.5-second split), Julian Marks (breaststroke) and anchorman, Dave Bennet (freestyle).

Les Schwartz '60 Les, Peter Schreibman Klein, Ray Sokol, Mike Leebove '60, Gene Hertz and Bruce Epstein have a mini reunion every Thursday night for dinner at various restaurants. Anyone still living locally call Les at 310-559-4544 or email les1942@aol.com if interested in joining them.

Jeffrey Stevens '60 Jeffrey is chief of nuclear medicine at Oregon Health and Science University.

Sarah Tipp Boogaart '61 Sarah's only news is her sadness of the loss of her sister, Sheila Tipp Thomsen '62. She died suddenly (for Sarah) because she didn't let anyone know she was ill of cancer. Sheila is survived by her husband David, four children and 14 grandchildren.

Judith Miller Laska '61 Judith and Paul are enjoying their retirement keeping busy with travel, family, Special Olympics, Coast Guard Auxiliary and other volunteering. Her mother is living and is 99 years old. They are now great-grandparents and are looking forward to spending more time at their other home in Rancho Mirage.

Wayne Hartunian '61

Regina Markell Morantz-Sanchez '61

Regina is still a professor of American history in the University of Michigan History Department, but she will retire in 2016 and they are organizing a retirement conference for her in the fall. After getting her PhD in American social history at Columbia University in 1971, she was among a cohort of new women historian graduates who pioneered women's history and gender history. At the same time, she was also involved with a group of historians who pioneered the history of medicine. Regina's first husband was at the time at NYU School of Medicine and she got a lot of insight (not always positive) on medical training. Her first book was the first history of women physicians in the U.S. The University of Michigan is the best public university in the country. Before coming here in 1994, she taught at UCLA.

Sherry Berk Tedeschi '61

Sherry's year has been exciting and fun. She is on the board of the Beverly Hills Historical Society. They took over Annenberg and premiered a film, Beverly

Eric Snow '63 with his wife Marguerite

Hills: 100 years, 100 Stories. The evening was an enormous success and future events will be posted on Facebook. Last year she got interested in football and now she's a Sunday addict. She also made use of her tap room and started taking private tap lessons. Bob and she are still studying Japanese—and studying and studying. Most important are their kids and grandkids. Their daughter, Denise '84, married Gerald, who is from Chicago and they have two kids. Their grandson, David, is in high school and he plays the drums. Sherry couldn't love it more when he's practicing as he provides the rhythm as she taps. Their granddaughter, Jennifer, just became a teenager. Their son, Gary '87 and his wife, Miyuki, have a nine-year-old daughter, Kylie. Kylie is bilingual and when either Bob or Sherry speak to her in Japanese, she tells them she doesn't understand them. (Sherry figures they have to keep studying.) They're also still supporting our men and women in the military and are very involved in local politics. They worked intensely, with a great team of people, to get Isabel Hacker and Mel Spitz elected to the Board of Education. She's grateful for her fantastic family!

Valerie Wilding '61 Valerie has had a fun year. She visited her three grandchildren in Colorado—beautiful state! Feeling good!

Lloyd "Butch"

Barton '62 Lloyd and Karen E. Mitchell Barton celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in Cancun, Mexico with family and friends.

Ellen Winkler Ohms

'62 Ellen and her husband finally moved to Arizona and are loving every minute of the warm weather. Retirement is great! Finally—no more ranch chores!

Marc Yergin '62 Marc is fully retired except for leading spinning classes at local gyms and clubs. He just certified as a group fitness instructor by American Council on Exercise to complement his certification as spinning instructor by Mad Dogg Athletes. He's still living in Pittsburg, Pa. and enjoying four seasons.

Jay Fineman '63 In 2015, Jay celebrated his 70th birthday, his son Jonas' daughter's birth, his mother-in-law's 95th birthday, and, his 48th wedding anniversary! The clinic is sold and he's doing a house-call palliative care practice, which is challenging and rewarding. They now spend five months a year in Sweden, some time in Mexico, also time in British Columbia where their older son skips boats for Blue Water Adventures, and, Portland where their younger son, Lars, lives and works. When they are here in Newport, they walk the dog, hang out with friends and volunteer at The Marina Science Center. All's good, but where did the time go?

Robert Freeman '63 Robert still feels like he's on Hamburger Row and looking out for the boys' vice principal, Mr. M. He's still in love with Ellen S.

Marla Leventhal '63 Marla is still living in the desert near Palm Desert and loving retirement. She's still singing with several choirs and having a great time!

Eric Snow '63 Eric is retired and enjoying a lot of traveling with his wife of 46 years, Marguerite. They had a nice vacation in Grand Cayman last fall, diving and relaxing in the nice weather. They just returned from a bus tour of Ireland in September. They still live in Las Vegas where their family lives close and sees them often.

Donald M. Butler '64 Donald worked as a letter carrier in the Beverly Hills Postal Service and has been retired for a year and a half. He feels really free for the first time since he was four years old! (First came nursery school, kindergarten, eight years of grammar school, four years of high school, four years of military service, four years of college, two years of graduate studies, 11 years in a small corporate supply company, and 28 years in the Postal Service!) Now at 67 years old he is free at last. He now keeps himself active in the new Beverly Hills Senior Community Center taking two art classes, one acting class, and for the last five months he has selected the movies the seniors see on Thursday every week, with a different theme each week.

Fred A. Fenster '64 Fred is commencing his 39th year as an adjunct professor of law at USC Law School specializing in pretrial advocacy. Besides practicing full time, he and Andrea (his wife of 43 years) have gone into the wine business with longtime friend and client, Pete Rose, the famous baseball great who collected more hits—4,256—than anyone who played the game. Using a play on words and his nickname, the two featured wines are Pete Rosé and Charlie Hustle Red. The net proceeds from the wine sales help fund Pete's charitable foundation Hustle for Heroes.

Marty Nislick '64 Marty announces: Hey, classmates. Look for our 70th birthday on Labor Day Weekend 2016! BHFD is on alert to manage all the candles. Stay well!

They live with three labs, Walter, Tony and Audrey, and are still great friends with Christie Chazan and Kerry and Barry Parkhurst. They have been "having fun since '61." She and Ed, who is a vice chairman of Warner Bros., have been married for 27 years.

Ron Friedman '66 Ron's three grandchildren continue to amaze him and his wife as they grow. Nothing is better than being a grandparent. They play with the kids then give them back to their parents. He is continuing as a CPA/Partner at Marcum LLP and is having a great time. No thought of retirement; work is just fun!

Patty Brown Myers '66 Patty's granddaughter is turning 20 in 2016!

Their other daughter lives in Tel Aviv and works in real estate. He and Kathy have been married 38 years. He's discovered that in retirement he has an affinity for kicking back and thoroughly enjoying himself.

Dean Rice '68 Dean recently retired from a 41-year aviation career; much of it as an airline captain. This life proved to be the culmination of boyhood hopes and dreams starting at Beverly Vista and continuing through BHHS years. It was a little harsh to see his schedule code report read, "This pilot can no longer fly due to failure to comply with FAA regulations." He didn't fail anything. All he did was have a birthday! (Professional big jet flying ends for all when they reach age 65.) After spending much of his life traveling around the world, he now finds adventures in his

Anne Richert '66 with husband Tom and grandkids Lily, 6; Henry, 9 mo.; Lucy, 2; and Miles, 8

21-year home in Louisville, Ky. that he never knew existed. Oh well, transitioning to retirement has been very busy. Dean is still trying to figure out Medicare and Medicaid! In his spare moments he proudly observes the growth of his two boys. Jonathan (26) just finished his MBA and has a great accounting job with a local firm. Jeremy (23) graduated with a civil engineering degree from University of Memphis and is now home working on a master's degree in structural engineering at University of Louisville. The young ones still share Dad's high school interest in running (they both run marathons) and in surfing. Summers on the East Coast make them both brag about huge waves. Dad always responds, "You don't know great waves until you've surfed at Santa Monica or Malibu!"

Ruth Bassman Schriebman '68 Ruth is still enjoying her psychotherapy practice in Redondo Beach. Because of their two-year-old granddaughter, they were very lucky to buy a small condo in San Diego to see her as often as possible. It's been great seeing and hearing from old classmates.

Scott Broffman '71 Scott says another year has passed as have both his parents. He now lives with four dogs (two his, and two his roommate's). One of his beloved birds also passed away. He has continued to practice law: "Will I ever be good enough to 'do law'?" Also, he has been traveling a great deal and that has been awesome.

Wendie Miller Schwab '71 Wendie and Mark have been married for 39 years and have lived on Maui since 1988. Their two children, Melissa (34) and Aaron (32), now each have a son. Mark recently retired from practicing cardiology and Wendie retired from practicing dentistry. Aloha from the Schwabs!

Martin Schwartz '71 Marty is retired from his veterinary practice and now works for the California Veterinary Medical Board inspecting hospitals around the Southland.

Judith is still active in the arts and recently began painting again and took her first commission at a UCLA exhibit of watercolors from her children's book, Dragons. She ghostwrites novels for an author, is first-reader for others and edits the occasional biography and autobiography for a Las Vegas publisher. He entered the work environment after a short stint in college, first for an entertainment public relations firm, then for a prominent personal management firm, and finally settling in as a casting director in television. Eventually, he found a great personal and professional fit in residential real estate brokerage, where for nearly 30 years he has been among the top agents at Coldwell Banker, Beverly Hills. He lives with his husband of 15 years, Daniel, and four rescue dogs in a modern gallery-residential space custom designed for their extensive contemporary art collection,

Take Me Back to the Warner

Last year, we asked you to share your memories of the Warner Theater, which stood at the southwest corner of Wilshire Boulevard and Canon Drive.

For more than 10 years in the '40s and '50s I lived on Reeves Drive about a half block south of the theater. I attended it many times and have certain memories: Occasionally there was a premiere complete with big searchlights. One time I saw the stars assembling at the old Post Office parking lot for transportation by limousine to the theater. I remember when the admission price for adults suddenly increased from 40 cents to 44 cents. However, the one incident that stands out above all others happened one evening when the theater was packed. Suddenly the auditorium shook violently with an earthquake. There was a dead silence, then people stood up and were on the point of stampeding. A man in the central rear shouted, "SIT DOWN." Sheepishly, the audience obeyed. That man with his quick thinking probably saved many lives.

— Bill Campbell S'45

I lived on Reeves Drive just south of Wilshire Boulevard from 1937 to 1940 as a student at Beverly Vista. Being so close to the Warner Brothers movie palace, I probably attended the double feature with news and cartoon programs at least once a week. My parents would give me 50 cents when they were out for the evening so I could have the Blue Plate special at Thrifty drugstore across the street, buy five cents of candy at the shop next to the theater and pay my 15 cents admission for a whole evening of entertainment. Those were the days of the great Hollywood classics. I shall always remember how special those evenings were.

The Warner screens The Ten Commandments in 1956

— Pat Ford S'45

I was fortunate to live on the 200 block of South Canon Drive during the Golden Age of motion pictures. My parents moved there in the spring of 1933 soon after the theater was built. The first I remember was the 1938 The Story of Robin Hood with Errol Flynn. It was fantastic. Later, there were many films with Humphrey Bogart, Peter Lorre and Sydney Greenstreet. During WWII, movies were very popular and most people went every week because with gas rationing there wasn't much else to do. Then too, the stars and the movies were fabulous.

Often young couples sat in the balcony so they could smoke and have some privacy. The neighbors and family were usually at the same movie. Since smoking was allowed in the balcony, the smoke was so thick you could hardly see the movie, but no one seemed to care. The big things were the premieres when the huge searchlights appeared two blocks from our house. The next day, on the front page of the paper were pictures of the stars from the movie standing in front of the theater.

At the time, I thought the interior was a bit much. It was a little gaudy, but now I realize it was all part of the great era of theaters built at that time. I can't believe it is gone. I always think that if I went back to Beverly Hills today, the first thing I would see was the Warner Brothers Theater on Wilshire Boulevard.

— Carol Herrick Jauregui S'46

The Warner Theater holds many happy memories for me from the late 1930s and early 1940s. I was 12 years old and a student at Beverly Vista when, with two of my classmates, Arthur Engstrom and John Bleakmore, we celebrated New Years Eve 1938 at the Warner. The movie was The Dawn Patrol starring our favorite movie hero, Errol Flynn. The following year was an especially great year for our hero's hits and we attended often well into our high school years.

In 1939, the premiere of Confessions of a Nazi Spy starring Edward G. Robinson was held at the Warner. In addition to the customers, the attendance included many policemen and special agents. The movie was based on the revelations of former FBI agent Leon G. Turrou and followed closely the facts of an actual spy trial involving high-ranking officials in the Reich and their American counterparts. The movie addressed the threat of Nazism and warned the world of the peril in which democracy was being placed. The movie narrative line involved the uncovering of a network of Nazi agents by a team of G-men led by Robinson. Everyone involved in the production received threatening letters assumed to be in response to the anti-Nazi propaganda the movie espoused, which, in turn, resulted in the high level of security.

On that evening I walked to the theater area from my home on North Crescent Drive, just around the corner and up the street. I was greeted by a sense of eeriness because no Klieg lights lit up the sky on that night. Premieres of that era included the bright lights which could be seen for a mile or so. Due to the potential of the threats, apparently the city officials elected to suspend the night sky advertising on this occasion.

— Armond "Buddy" Lisle S'46

I remember the balcony for a hot date—you can take it from there! Mostly, I remember the movie, Jolson. There was a contest as to who saw the movie the most times. I recall seeing it about 11 times. Also, across the street was a BBQ restaurant. They had the best fries! I used to load up and eat them on my way home from the movies. That's what I remember of Warner. Good memories!

— Phil Jaffe '51

Turned around during Saturday matinee intermission and saw Tarzan, Johnny Weissmuller. We asked if he was Tarzan and he said yes.

Another time around 1954 or 1955, my friend and I went to see the Will Rogers movie. During the newsreel they showed the Will Rogers Memorial Park dedication and we screamed, because there we were front and center. We went to the dedication, but had no idea we were in the newsreel.

— Melanie Aminoff Clampitt '58

My fondest memories of this theater are the Saturday Bugs Bunny matinees in the late 1940s to very early 1950s. I believe it cost $0.25 at the time, and you would see cartoons, serials and a picture—usually a Western or animal story film. Big treat was to get root beer barrels or Milk Duds.

— Nancy Bryson Helgans '58

Warner Bros. was a beautiful art-deco theater. I seem to remember that Steve Fisher, Tom Welch, Ray Warren and I were charter members of something called the Bugs Bunny Club at the theater in the 1950s. This allowed you to pay a quarter every Saturday morning to see a double feature cartoon. A few years later we learned to sneak into the balcony by hiking two flights of stairs that ran along Canon Drive. I think we saw The Greatest Show on Earth and The Ten Commandments 25 or 30 times.

I moved north to Santa Barbara 48 years ago because it reminded me of Beverly Hills in the late '40s and '50s. All of us were fortunate to have experienced the very best years of the Westside of L.A.

— John McCann '60

I saw several movies at the Warner during the '60s, including Lawrence of Arabia, which had a run of about 15 months there! (Movie distribution worked differently in those days.) Later, the name was Cont. on back cover

'53 grad's entertainment career began at the Warner

I spent a good part of my high-school years [at the Warner] as I was on the 4/4 plan (school and work) for my last two years or so. As a matter of fact, they should have called it the "Grant Sisters" Theater, for my older sister, Beverly Louise Grant '50, worked as the cashier in her senior year and my next sister, Barbara Jane Grant '52, worked either as a candy girl or usherette as I did in my junior and senior year.

During those days there were a lot of big Hollywood premieres, [which] stars like Joan Crawford, Rosemary Clooney, Robert Wagner, John Wayne and Marilyn Monroe [attended]. Some of those events were formal; we were asked to wear long gowns. Loved seeing Robert Wagner, who came in frequently and was dating my sister Barbara's best friend. I also remember one slow day where Marilyn Monroe snuck in the back of the auditorium wearing no makeup just to see herself in the movie with Clark Gable that we were playing. I think I know every line in Marlon Brando's A Streetcar Named Desire and had fun yelling "Stella" with him every time. Then there was Betty Hutton, who I sang along with in The Greatest Show on Earth.

My sister Barbara met her first husband there, the assistant manager who was also pursuing an acting career and had the same agent as Rock Hudson. I helped her run away from home to meet him at the L.A. train station. They went to Texas, got married and since Beverly had left home to marry Dick Ward '50 and I was the only sister left at home, I was the one that got in trouble with my parents for allowing her to elope.

After graduation I worked at other theaters such as the Egyptian Theater on Hollywood Boulevard, where I saw a big, tall cowboy stroll down the long entrance way to see himself in The High and the Mighty—the great John Wayne. Later he served me and other employees for our Christmas employee party at the Balboa Bay Club in Newport Beach where he was on the board. That same night who should come in the Club but my first boyfriend in my freshman year—Al Rabelais '51.

I also worked at the Beverly Theater on Beverly and Wilshire and another premiere showing of the first Todd-AO movie Oklahoma on the movie lot of MGM in Culver City where I had lunch with young Debbie Reynolds in the commissary.

After experiencing these encounters with well-known movie stars it encouraged me to pursue meeting Elvis Presley at The Beverly Hills Hotel and becoming friends with him and all the boys from Memphis in 1956 and 1957 while working at the Bank of America at Wilshire and Robertson.

Betty Ann Grant '53 with Elvis and as Miss Edsel in 1956

I went on to professional dancing on the West Coast with the Joy Healey Dancers—appearing with Milton Berle at the Maples Hotel in Reno; Ho Ti Supper in Portland, Ore. for eight weeks; Sacramento Inn; Santa Barbara Miramar Hotel; the Riviera Hotel in Palm Springs; and appearing with Pearl Bailey at The Beverly Hilton, finally ending up for three years dancing the Charleston on the Bar at the famous Roaring 20s Restaurant on Restaurant Row on La Cienega in Beverly Hills. While there I worked at modeling, was "Miss Edsel" for the Ford Company and did a few movies—Back to School with Rodney Dangerfield, Fatal

Beauty with Whoopi Goldberg and Sam Elliot, a few TV movies, and other films.

If my memory were better at age 80, I could probably tell even more stories but it all started from working at the Warner Theater, meeting Elvis at age 21, pursuing an entertainment career and continuing it right up until now, for I do an activity hour at senior retirement homes where I hold seniors' hands and "Move to the Music," which is what my business is called. Recently I have been in contact with George Klein, who introduced me to Elvis over 50 years ago. He is a DJ in Memphis on his own Elvis talk show on Sirius Radio. I also appeared at my fourth Elvis Festival in Petaluma in May 2015.

1970 Norman Newsreel captured Kent State protest,

In the days following the Kent State shootings on May 4, 1970, universities and high schools across the country, including UCLA, closed down after students went on strike.

Beverly students joined the protest movement, holding a protest on campus in which speakers urged their classmates to march to UCLA.

Video from the event recently posted on YouTube has brought new life to the decades-old incident.

"The time has come that Beverly Hills High School people wake up and be aware of what's going on in campuses other than this Beverly High campus," one speaker announced. "We've got to get involved. We've got to do something because otherwise, you're not going to have another chance. The Kent State killing shows how far they're willing to go to repress dissent in this country and that was the first killing. It's not going to be the last."

Another student called for closing down campus.

"You people are far out, you've got long hair and you're the sons and the daughters of the ruling class, you know, and it's the ruling class that perpetuates this war in Vietnam," said another speaker.

Footage of the protest was captured in the 1970 second-semester Norman Newsreel, which Newsreel director of photography Alan Koplin '70 uploaded a few years ago on YouTube. "I figured it was right for [YouTube]," Koplin told Alumni Highlights.

"The entire school was out there, I mean it was huge," he said. "... I think [it started] at lunchtime and a bunch of the radicals of the school got up by the flagpole and started talking. It just grew and people were coming down to hear and it was pretty exciting."

"I remember ... worrying about: Are we going to get in trouble? Are we going to get suspended? And Mr. Suter kept saying, 'Cut it together, cut it together.' ... He backed us up 100 percent."

-- Alan Koplin '70

Eventually, Principal F. Willard "Robbie" Robinson, who passed away in 2014 at age 96, arrived in an attempt to calm the students.

"You've had the chance to express points of view and the thing we need to do now is to go on back and get back to class and cool it as a student body so we can go on and discuss problems as they come up," a PA system and he wasn't, so we got really great sound," Koplin remembered.

Rob Feldman '70, who appeared in another segment of the newsreel, remembered his high school years as a time when students started to question authority for the first time.

"Our protesting started back in '68 when we walked out on the Vietnam war," Feldman remembered. "... I think at that time the teachers—as great as they were—they didn't know how to tell us what was what, to sit down [and have] a dialogue."

Feldman remembered the protest ringleaders remained out on the lawn, but most of the student body headed back to class.

"We were pissed off but [the war] was halfway across the world from us," Feldman said. "I don't think many people understood what was really going on."

After Robinson addressed the students, the video shows another speaker announcing a weekend rally as an opportunity to discuss current events.

"They said that Saturday they won't hassle us if we have a rally at Roxbury Park," the speaker said. "... Our time,

May 12, 1970

Dr. Robinson:

When you told me yesterday morning that the film and sound that the Norman Newsreel Crew shot of the protest demonstration on the front lawn, could not be used for the Norman Newsreel, I was astonished! When you further told me that you wanted to use the film to show to Board members, the Superintendent, and other citizens of Beverly Hills at a 5:00 P.M. meeting today, I was flabbergasted! Do you realize what kind of "rat-fink", spy, betrayer position you place my film crew and me in, if you show the film or play the tape today?

I would never, ever use a camera or a tape recorder to gather incriminating evidence against Beverly students protesting the war on the front lawn. That's not my "thing".

The students felt that they had the right to speak freely about Cambodia, Vietnam and the problems of our society. Whether we agree with what they said, or how they said it, it was clear to me, that they felt ineffective in stopping the horrors of war.

We of the Norman Newsreel wanted to record this event as a historical protest happening on our campus, combining it with other data we've gathered from Ecology Day, etc. When students challenged us as to why their pictures were being taken and voices taped, they seemed relieved when informed it was only for the Norman Newsreel. Many remembered the fine objective coverage our crew did with last years protesting students.

After much soul searching, I have come to the conclusion that I cannot turn over to you the film and tape of the Vietnam-Cambodia student protest on the front lawn of Beverly Hills High School. I would strongly suggest that a committee of teachers, students, the war protesting students and administrators be formed to preview our upcoming Norman Newsreel. We will abide by the recommendations of the committee.

Yours Truly,

our discussion, our organization, the way we want.”

With the help of classmates, Koplin and Leonard Horowitz '70, Newsreel sound & technical director, produced the Norman Newsreel in association with the Boys League, under the sponsorship of art teacher Lyle Suter. Mark Sonners was credited as cameraman and special effects.

After the protest, Koplin remembered Robinson and other administrators pressuring the newsreel crew to hand over the footage.

“I remember being cornered in the elevator by the vice principal, I think it was, and was told I would need to turn it over or there would be serious trouble,” said Koplin. “I was scared but I didn’t have ‘em anyway.”

Koplin had already given the footage to Suter.

“It was pretty controversial,” said Koplin. “They did not want that to get out at all. Mr. Suter was the hero. He risked his job over that footage because they wanted to see who was involved.”

Suter’s son, Michael Suter '75, still has a copy of a typewritten letter from his father, dated May 12, 1970 and addressed to Dr. Robinson, refusing to turn over the footage. Suter passed away in 2011 at age 86.

According to that letter, Robinson intended to show the video that afternoon to school board members, the superintendent and other Beverly Hills citizens.

“Do you realize what kind of ‘rat-fink,’ spy, betrayer position you place my film crew and me in, if you show the film or play the tape today?” Suter wrote. “I would never, ever use a camera or a tape recorder to gather incriminating evidence against Beverly students protesting the war on the front lawn. That’s not ‘my thing.’”

Koplin said the crew agreed to screen it for the administration before screening it for the student body.

“Finally it was ready the day of the screening, and so they didn’t have much time to see it,” he said. “Right before the kids saw it we screened it to them and all they had time to do was tell us to bleep the swear words. We were bleeping it in the projection booth. But we missed one bleep, I think, at the end.”

Rhonda Fleming’s Big Break

What would happen to me one morning on my way to Beverly would change my life. Late as usual—carrying my shoes to run faster—I noticed this black limousine going around the block and a man peering intently at me. As I’d cross the next street, he’d come around again and he’d look at me and by the third block, now I’m frightened, because Mother had warned me about men like this—he blocked my path so I couldn’t cross. He jumped out of the car and he came up to me—and so help me, this is what he said—this is why I’m saying it’s a “Hollywood Cinderella Story,” because it could only happen in Hollywood during the studio system era.

He said, “Young lady, have you ever thought of being in motion pictures?” Well, I mean I’d never heard a line like that and I didn’t even know how to answer it. I said, “I’m having trouble getting to high school—I’m late.” He said “Where do you live?” and I told him I lived with my mother and I promptly ran off to school and forgot about it.

But when I got home that afternoon, sure enough, he’d been there talking to my mother. Now, he was to be a big influence in my life. He was the famous

He discovered Rock Hudson—he was a mailman and you know what happened to him—and Tab Hunter and Lana Turner and others. Well, a few years after our first meeting, Henry became the top assistant to David O. Stone '74 talks his career, the courts and his family's Beverly roots

Alumni Highlights caught up with Judge Richard Stone '74 in January.

Last year, you retired after 15 years on the bench as a Los Angeles County Superior Court judge. What were some highlights of your judicial career?

I loved working in Beverly Hills and Santa Monica. I was blessed with the opportunity to work alongside some tremendous judicial officers and former Beverly graduates, like Judge Lisa Hart Cole '73. I handled interesting cases every day. I felt like I could watch great lawyers work every day. Every day was a highlight.

[Last year,] the Daily Journal [profiled you and highlighted] the West District settlement program. [How did you get involved with that?]

Through the budget crisis, the courts contracted. ... One of the places where the court had to cut was the management of the settlement program, [which] was an alternative dispute resolution program. ... We created one in the West District, with Judge Cole and [myself]. We basically had all of the judges who were handling calendars notify the lawyers that we were conducting our own settlement program. Then they would contact me and I would assign judges on a wheel, so to speak, making sure that the judge from whom the case came would not be the judge who did the settlement conference. It was pretty successful. ... The best part about it, of course, was it assisted the parties in resolving their disputes and we avoided trying cases that would be going to trial unnecessarily. ...

What are some other challenges facing the courts today—and how have they changed since you became a judge in 2000?

The court has gone through a tremendous upheaval over the course of the last 10 years, maybe a touch longer. [Because of] the budgetary constraints, there have been a substantial number of courtrooms closed [and] a substantial number of different types of courtrooms that are now only available in certain locations. That's simply because they didn't have the funds to support the staffing of courtrooms as they had in the past.

There have been significant and demonstrable changes in the approach that Los Angeles Superior Court has taken to handling cases of all different types throughout the system. Now I still think that people get their cases heard and I still think that people can obtain justice in the courts ... but I do think there have been significant compromises along the way in access to justice. ... Sometimes they have to drive a little further to do so. Sometimes they have to wait a little longer to get it. Sometimes cases don't get to trial as quickly or motions don't get heard as quickly. All of the people that I know who are working in the Superior Court are working at their optimal level. They are working incredibly hard, doing their best to try to make sure that the litigants get their day in court.

Do you think there's a chance the Beverly Hills Courthouse might reopen?

The Los Angeles Superior Court has left it available to be reoccupied for court purposes. At the present time, it's only available and open for traffic arraignments. Another Beverly Hills resident, Judge Marsha Revel, is there working. ... By leaving the courthouse open with one courtroom functioning, they've left it such that the courthouse could be reopened, but I do think the limitations are financial in nature. Unless there was a substantial increase in the amount of funding for court services, I would be surprised if that would be a place where the money would be spent at this time.

[Tell us] about growing up in Beverly Hills and [who] inspired your legal career path.

My family moved to Beverly Hills just before I started kindergarten. [My brother, Ron Stone '76, my sister, Cindy Stone Hiles '69, and I] all attended El Rodeo ... and Beverly. My sister's kids [and] my brothers' kids [are Beverly graduates]. [Ron's wife is Ronit Mandelbaum Stone '79.] My older son Jack graduated ... last year and my younger son [Keith] will graduate next year. My mother [Lona Kahn '48] went to El Rodeo and graduated from Beverly, as did both of my uncles [Ed Kahn '51 and Sam Kahn '54].

That's quite a history.

It really is. As for the inspiration to become an attorney, that came from my father who has been an attorney practicing in Beverly Hills for more than 50 years.

Judge Richard Stone '74

What's it been like watching your sons go through Beverly?

My kids [have] had some extraordinary teachers, [including Nadine Mwesiga for English and Gaby Herbst '01], who is in charge of the yearbook. ... That's just to name a couple. There are lots of teachers ... that I think the world of because of their dedication to education and the kids. ... It's nice to have a neighborhood school where you get the opportunity to watch all of these kids ... go through the elementary school and then the high school. You get to see them grow up and turn into young adults and hopefully develop into productive and contributing members of our society. It's fun to watch that happen.

Do you think a legal career is in the future for either of your sons?

I will support them in whatever they choose. ... I hope, whatever it is, they have as much joy and pleasure in their careers as I have had in mine.

What's in store for your retirement?

I retired from the Los Angeles Superior Court, but I am what they call a private judge or a mediator or an arbitrator. I basically do what I used to do. ... I do it privately for different law firms and the like who engage my services.

'04 grad stars in "The Carmichael Show"

When Amber Stevens West '04 was a student at Beverly, she auditioned for the school's production of the musical Godspell.

The audition began with dancing and Stevens West was among the early groups to audition.

"I'm not a very good dancer," Stevens West said in an interview last August with Beverly Hills Weekly. "I couldn't pick up the choreography quick enough and I was eliminated in the first round and completely discouraged from ever auditioning again."

However, Stevens West went on to become a professional actress, including being part of the cast of the comedy The Carmichael Show, which premiered last August on NBC. The show has since been renewed for a second season.

Stevens West said her acting career stems from her modeling career, which began when she was an eighth grader at Hawthorne, and her mother, Beverly Cunningham, who had been a model, would bring her to auditions.

The modeling agency she was affiliated with, Nous Model Management, opened a commercials division, "and they just started sending me on commercial auditions," Stevens West said.

Stevens West's first commercial was for Old Navy, in which she waits to be admitted to a club as Fran Drescher walks by.

Stevens West's commercial agent recommended her to Robert Enriquez, a manager who "was just looking for talent," she said.

"I was 16 or 17 and I auditioned for him in his office and he [asked], 'Are you interested in being an actress?' I was like, 'I don't know. OK.

I'll try that,'" she said. "It didn't seem that much different from auditioning for commercials because I had to talk on camera. I wasn't afraid of that because my dad [Shadoe Stevens] was an actor for a lot of my childhood, so I was familiar with what it entailed."

Stevens West began taking acting classes after graduating from Beverly "and somehow it turned into my career," she said.

"I knew it would be really fun, but there was a part of me who wanted to be a musician," Stevens West said. "That's why I was singing in high school. I was writing music. I was working with different producers and meeting with record labels and really thought that was the direction my life was going to go in. Little did I know that acting was where I should be."

At Beverly, Stevens West was involved in student government, including a stint as ASB president, and a member of the Minnesingers.

"I adored that. Mr. [Joel] Pressman was someone who made a big difference in my high school life," Stevens West said.

Stevens West went on to be a cast member of the 2007–11 ABC Family college comedy-drama Greek, playing the best friend and roommate of the character portrayed by Spencer Grammer. That role led her to meeting Andrew J. West, who appeared in 12 episodes and dated her character. The two were married in December 2014.

Stevens West's other television credits include CSI: Crime Scene Investigation, Grey's Anatomy, How I Met Your Mother, 90210, New Girl and Criminal Minds.

Stevens West had previously auditioned for an NBC pilot starring The Carmichael Show's star, executive producer and writer Jerrod Carmichael.

Amber Stevens West '04

"We had this great audition," Stevens West said. "We had a lot of chemistry. It was really fun. You don't ever hug people after an audition because you just met them, but we hugged afterwards."

Stevens West said she "wanted to be a part of that project so much," but was unavailable because she was filming the movie 22 Jump Street. Another actor was cast, a pilot was shot and scrapped by NBC, Stevens West said.

Stevens West auditioned for the current version of The Carmichael Show and was cast as the therapist-in-training live-in girlfriend of Carmichael's character.

"I've wanted to work on a sitcom my whole acting career," Stevens West said. "Jerrod is so talented and has some really interesting ideas of what he wants to do for a show. He wants all of this creative control and NBC has really given him that."

"I'm really proud to be part of a show like this. It's fresh. It's been a while since we've [had] characters like this on TV. This show is very smart. It's a really honest show about a real family having a real conversation about things that are actually going on in their life."

$125 million verdict for client of Dordick '80

In January, a jury reached a record-breaking $125 million verdict on behalf of a client of Gary Dordick '80 and against a drunk driver.

Dordick's client, 24-year-old Francisco Briones, was driving to work in Oxnard in March 2013, when the defendant, Christopher Zink, ran a red light and crashed into his vehicle at Rice Avenue and Channel Islands Boulevard. The crash left Briones a quadriplegic who requires round-the-clock care. Zink's blood alcohol level was 0.14, nearly twice the legal limit.

"The jury wanted to send a clear message that people in Ventura County don't tolerate drunk driving," Dordick told the Ventura County Star, adding that the number is largely symbolic since Zink will be responsible for a portion of the damages and will unlikely be able to pay. Insurance will cover a portion of the award.

The defendant is serving a seven-year prison term following his felony conviction of driving under the influence and causing injury.

Where are they now? The Johnson Family

The Johnsons are a family of six siblings who all graduated from Beverly.

JOHN “JJ” JOHNSON ’89

JJ is back at Beverly, where he works as an instructional assistant and coach. He returned in 2010, after a 17-year career as a police officer in the UC Davis Police Department, where he progressed up the ranks to lieutenant. For four years, he taught an ROP class titled Administration of Justice, which allowed him to share his expertise in law enforcement.

“Over the time that I was able to teach the class, I slowly began to realize all the different special aspects of being an educator and it provided much more appreciation for all the different educators I’ve had,” said JJ, who has two master’s degrees and plans to pursue a PhD in education.

JJ has had the opportunity to work alongside some of them, including John Borsum, Herb Hall, Carter Paysinger, Joel Pressman, Steve Rapaport and Marla Weiss.

“When I talked with Mr. Paysinger ... about the possibility of applying for a job in the district, it was because I had maintained a relationship with this person who was my sophomore basketball coach and my quarterback coach. He had created an environment for me to succeed. ... I was on board to help him anyway I could. It was about continuing that tradition of caring about young people and making sure they understood how important they were so that they can go off and do everything they could that was part of their destiny and then find a way to give back to the succeeding generation.”

This year JJ has been involved with coaching football and assistant coaching the Academic Decathlon team. Over winter break, he chaperoned the orchestra on its trip to England.

JJ said he always appreciated coming back to visit his teachers—and singing “Still, Still, Still” with the Madrigals and fellow alumni at the winter concert, a tradition started by Pressman.

“... When I was in high school, [my siblings and I] didn’t get a chance to sing together, so it became an opportunity to sing together. For example, I think it was 1997, I surprised my father and drove down from Northern California and worked with ... my three brothers to all be onstage [for] ‘Still, Still, Still’ ... My father had always said he wanted to record his sons performing onstage together and he wanted us to work together to develop a singing group.”

EDWARD JOHNSON ’92

When it comes to performing arts, Edward is still a triple threat. At UC Irvine, he triple majored in music, dance and theater. He went on to earn his teaching credential and for the past 13 years, he’s been running the dance program at University High in Irvine.

He and his wife, Shanti, are professional dancers. He also performs musical theater and sings with an a capella group called Men in Blaque, which will be touring South Africa this summer.

“My introduction to dance was being a freshman at Beverly and coming to the company practices where [several] members from the football team, [JJ] being among them, were seniors taking part in being honorary guests of the dance company,” Edward said. JJ said Janet Roston, director of the dance company, called them the Company Dudes.

“The cool bit of inspiration for me was [when] Janet Roston took a moment and said to me, ‘Oh, so you’ll be up here next year,’” Edward remembered. “It was never a thought in my mind; I was just hanging out at my brother’s practice. But that one word from a teacher inspired me to come back and take part in the dance concerts at Beverly.”

Edward said JJ also inspired him to pursue the Madrigals.

“For the rest of my life, there will be things that I will still be learning the importance and the value of as far as [JJ] pioneering things,” said Edward. “He was the first person in our family that was at Beverly and was involved in choir. ... I watched elements of his life revolve around performance so this became a very embedded part of our life: When you get to high school you’ll have to audition for the Madrigals because if you do, this is how your life can be defined—concerts and really rich literature provided at that time by Joel Pressman.”

Edward and Shanti have already observed their three-year-old daughter, Makhana, respond to music and dance. “She picks up things quickly physically. I have no idea whether that’s going to translate into her being a dynamic soccer player or ... being involved in theater or performance or a gymnast or just somebody who appreciates those things. We’re trying not to limit any of this exposure and if she wants to do dance, by all means.”

TERI JOHNSON ’96

In the years since Beverly, Teri has traveled extensively. She studied abroad in Bordeaux and worked for the State Department at the UN in Switzerland while getting her master’s a couple of years ago at UCLA.

Now she’s back in LA, doing legal work for a real estate firm. Although she continues to travel for business, Teri said “this is home.”

When Alumni Highlights spoke with Teri before the Super Bowl, she said she planned to watch the game with some of her brothers. “We don’t live together anymore but we’re still extremely close,” she said.

Teri’s master’s program involved teaching, so she summoned inspiration from stand-out teachers and coaches including Linda Lozes Burke, Kay Merritt, Carter Paysinger, Joel Pressman, Susan Sprouse and Marla Weiss.

Teri said Pressman taught her how a person could be complicated by virtue of his personality. “He was very passionate and he was very committed and he was very honest, and I feel like he was oftentimes brutally honest, but I think that worked in everyone’s favor,” she said.

Teri also appreciated Weiss, her coach and health teacher, for her honesty. “She came out to the class,” Teri said. “I don’t know if it was a big deal to her, but it was a big deal to us that she was sharing such a personal moment with us.”

Teri, who played volleyball and softball, also remembers the intensity and hard work Weiss expected from her teams. “She had rigorous practices and so I adopted a really great system and I still have it,” said Teri, who likes to dance, run, play tennis and volleyball, and participate in aerial arts.

Teri also recalled Paysinger offering to help when she found herself without a date a few weeks before prom.

“He made a point of saying, ‘Come by my office, I want to talk to you about something.’ I was like, ‘Oh shoot, I’m in trouble,’” she remembered. But, Paysinger had heard she was looking for a prom date—and had a suggestion.

“I realized one of my brothers [Ajay] had said something to him,”

Teri said. "He was my big brother and wanted to help me out. It eventually worked out OK—it actually didn't work out with the person that Carter suggested—but it was that kind of environment where it's very community oriented and [you have] people looking out for you. It was sweet. I have very fond memories of those adults who shaped my vision of what the world could look like and I'm really grateful for them."

ASHLEY "AJAY" JOHNSON '94

Ajay remembers approaching Carter Paysinger regarding Teri's prom.

"I knew my friends and I didn't want my sister going with any of them if we were going to remain friends," Ajay said. "... When it came down to my little sister, I knew I could trust the feedback that I'm getting from Carter, master of the local jocks."

Ajay said he remembered Carter and the coaches counseling players. "He can't have his quarterback sad going into the playoffs," said Ajay. "[The coaches] literally had this part-time counseling gig."

Today, Ajay and his wife, Claudia, have four children—Axe, Amen, Aleluia and Zoila—and are expecting a fifth. They're living in Oxnard but plan to move up the coast to Santa Barbara before the baby arrives.

"We've stayed in this area because it's got the mountains, it's got the beaches, there's waterfalls," said Ajay, a graduate of UCSB. "It's a really dynamic area."

Professionally, Ajay has immersed himself in a variety of fields, including entertainment, emergency services and teaching. "It feels like I'm working in reverse," he said. "Instead of working toward a specialty, I'm leaning toward jack of all trades."

Like his siblings, Ajay's goal is to make a difference. Recently, he's become involved in life coaching and lecturing.

In the past, he worked with a Santa Barbara-based educational program focused on reducing recidivism. "Once I did it, I couldn't believe I'd never done it before," said Ajay, who taught 20 inmates at a time basic skills including reading, writing and how to use a computer. "...

I learned to respect it was absolutely a different world and it's definitely a work in progress and I was trying to see what I could do to assist in the progress."

Ajay said it was challenging at times to leave work and pick up his kids from school. "To go from that harsh negative reality to trying to play dad and teach after school [was weird]. ... At the same time, while I'm there, I'm teaching guys to write letters to their kids."

CHARLES "CJ" JOHNSON '98

Charles lives in Los Angeles and works out of a Santa Monica-based behavioral therapy clinic that contracts with schools throughout West LA and the South Bay.

"We're focused on the behavioral issues that a kid has," said Charles, who works one on one with students with special needs. "We're there to provide support for them in the classroom and on the playground."

The goal, he said, is to help students build up skills so eventually they're able to move on without his assistance.

"I really love trying to make a difference and seeing the progress that our clients make," said Charles. "It's also making these connections with individuals. ... They are not the diagnosis." Charles said he plans to pursue a master's degree for further training in behavioral therapy.

"I think it's really interesting that so many of us—the Johnson kids—went through Beverly and ... are still involved in teaching or the school system in some way," he said. "It's the spark of teaching. ... We all shared that and we have carried it on. There are many times when ... I think back to teachers and experiences that I had while at Beverly."

Charles identified Carter, Donald and Vonzie Paysinger and Joel Pressman as his biggest influences at Beverly. He said sports, football and track, and Madrigals were huge parts of his identity.

"There was a passion behind what [the Paysingers] were doing," he said. "They were still teaching even though it was outside the classroom. [They demonstrated] the values of bringing passion to the work and building a team."

Similarly, he remembered Pressman inspiring the Madrigals to strive "for excellence even if no one's there."

"We would go out [holiday caroling] with small groups. It was all around Beverly Hills and we might be standing on Rodeo Drive and no one's around, but you're still going to sing as if you were in front of an audience. ... Even when no one is looking, keep going for it."

ONYX JOHNSON MOORE '03

Onyx is in her first year as program coordinator of the Black Mothers' Breastfeeding Club in Shreveport, La.

"We are a branch of the Black Mothers' Breastfeeding Association, which is a program designed specifically to raise breastfeeding rates in the black community, which are really, really low," said Onyx, who majored in social work. "... This is set up differently from other programs, where it isn't just a program for the mothers to come. ... Mothers can [also] bring their other children [and] their support people, so it's more of a community program."

Onyx and her husband, Gerael, who's originally from Shreveport, have lived in the area since 2009. They met at Southern University and A&M College in Baton Rouge and have three children, Actus, 15; Deaglan, 3; and Teagan, 4 months. Onyx is the farthest-flung Johnson, but she said she has plenty of family visitors.

Her mother, Louise, was visiting when Alumni Highlights spoke with Onyx in February.

As the baby of the family, Onyx had a unique experience at Beverly. "Because John was already at the school when I was born, I had teachers who had known me my entire life," said Onyx. Those included Carter Paysinger and Joel Pressman.

"There was an ability to participate in things with people knowing me already, with knowing how I was going to be because they knew how my parents had raised everybody else to be. There were times when it was definitely challenging because I was coming in and not getting a chance to know somebody on my own but then there were definitely positives for that very same reason."

Recently, Onyx said she was holding a book and realized she was holding it the way Pressman taught her to hold her music onstage. "There's much of what he taught that I use regularly, because so much of it didn't have to do with just singing. I come away from it having learned ... new words in other languages and having learned new concepts."

Farnoosh '09 talks Dash Dolls and Be the Match

Beverly Hills Weekly interviewed Nazy Farnoosh '09, one of the stars of Dash Dolls, prior to the E! show's premiere on Sept. 20, 2015. Dash Dolls is a spinoff of Keeping Up with the Kardashians.

How did you get approached by E! to appear on Dash Dolls?

I actually really wanted to work at Dash and I dropped off a resume [a little over a year ago] and ended up getting called back for an interview. I interviewed and got the position, and not too long after that, they decided that they wanted to do a show. I had relationships with all the girls that do work there so we all just mingled and [kind of] got thrown into it not long after. Obviously this is not something many people get to experience, so it was definitely something [I was interested in].

You graduated from Beverly High in 2009. Tell us about that.

... I moved to Beverly Hills for high school—my family moved with me. My little brother ended up going to El Rodeo and Beverly High. Honestly, I had the best four years at Beverly. I still have so many of my friends and connections from that school. I still live in Beverly Hills—I actually live right across the street from [Beverly], so I still get to see it all the time.

What can we expect from

Dash Dolls*?

I think the show is just going to be a window into our lives. It's going to be something that everyone can relate to [and understand] because it's a bunch of young adults that are trying to pave the way for their lives and learn to prioritize work.

It's something that everyone can go through: friendships and relationships and trying to separate business and pleasure. I think it's going to be fun, I think it's going to be funny, it's going to be sexy and it's definitely going to have a lot of fashion involved in it. ...

What is the most challenging aspect of striking a balance between your job as a Dash employee and your role on the show?

The way I would carry myself is the same way I would carry myself if the cameras weren't there. I do have an assistant manager position so I do think that the way I act and the way I carry myself is the way that I want the other girls to act. So, definitely, with or without the cameras, I'm pretty much the same.

How did you get involved with "Be the Match"?

My little brother was diagnosed with cancer a couple of months ago. So we reached out to Be the Match and we have a team working with us to find my little brother a donor for his bone marrow transplant. And basically what we do is go to different areas and different churches and hold a fundraiser for bone marrow and we hand out flyers and let people know. Be the Match [www.bethematch.org] definitely helps a lot of people that need it.

3 Questions: Savenick '69 on 100 years of Beverly Hills stories

The History of Beverly Hills: 100 Years, 100 Stories premiered at the Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts in Beverly Hills on Jan. 7. Directed and produced by Phil Savenick '69, the documentary offers an inside look of life in Beverly Hills from the Rancho Days to the 21st century. Beverly Hills Weekly spoke with Savenick before the premiere. Excerpts follow.

What's the greatest challenge you faced in producing the documentary?

We recorded the memories of over 150 current and former residents of Beverly Hills. With the help of my friends like Robbie Anderson and Marc Wanamaker of the Beverly Hills Historical Society, we set out to collect every still photograph, movie and video shot in the city over the last 100 years. In the end, I had over 300 hours of material to choose from. ... The greatest challenge was to pick just 90 minutes of the best of the best. As the editor, my challenge was to cut short pieces of each resident's recollections as if they were brushstrokes to paint a collective picture of our past 100 years.

What's the future of the documentary?

I licensed two hours of special history segments to BHTV that they are free to run. These include tributes to Harold Lloyd, Will Rogers, Robinson Gardens, as well as segments on the racetrack, the home front during WWII and "hometown heroes" that honor our parents and grandparents who founded and built this town. Many segments are already posted on Vimeo, and I am meeting with my old classmate [BHUSD Superintendent] Steve Kessler '71 about working segments into the curriculum in the schools.

The Beverly Hills Historical Society is hoping to set up a station at the library so residents can watch individual interviews or the final shows and we hope to someday give visitors smartphone access to the films in the parks. The film is available for civic organizations to show in many different configurations.

Why did you make this film?

I made this film to honor our founders, pioneers and visionaries. We stand on their shoulders. It honors the people who brought us to this paradise. Not only my parents—former mayor Ben [Norton] (who was instrumental in the design of the Civic Center) and former Planning Commissioner Rose Norton—but also all the other individuals who have given their time and talents to help make Beverly Hills great.

'89 grad wins silver at Pan Am Games

Sandra Utasy Uptagrafft '89 won the silver medal in the women's 25-meter pistol competition at the 2015 Pan American Games.

Uptagrafft and Lynda Kiejko of Canada tied each of the first two series in the gold medal match July 15, 2015 at the Toronto International Trap & Skeet Club in Innisfil, Ontario, located about an hour north of Toronto.

Kiejko won the third. The fourth ended in a tie and Kiejko won the fifth for a 7-3 victory.

"It was a tough competition," said Uptagrafft, who also won a silver medal in the event in the 2011 Pan American Games. "I'm excited and relieved all at the same time. You really had to win it. No one was giving it to you today."

Uptagrafft finished second in the semifinals with 12 hits to qualify for the gold medal match. She was fifth in qualifying with a score of 571 out of a possible 600.

The second-place finish guaranteed the U.S. a spot in the event at the 2016 Olympics in Rio de Janeiro.

The U.S. Olympic competitors in the event will be decided in the Olympic trials to be held in March or April.

Uptagrafft finished 28th in qualifying in the 25-meter pistol competition at the 2012 Summer Olympics. Her husband Eric Uptagrafft was also a member of the 2012 U.S. Olympic team,

2011 grad launches line of functional, fashionable fitness wear

Beverly Hills Weekly interviewed Leora Kashani '11, founder of Body Love Athletica, in November 2015.

Leora Kashani '11

What is Body Love?

Body Love Athletica is an activewear line meant to be functional and fashionable. Body Love is comfortable, innovative and keeps you in style. The brand inspires you to live a healthy and active lifestyle.

[Why did you start Body Love?]

I've been very active my whole life and always played sports. I loved being on teams and I loved being active—it was something I did every single day and I was just a very big athlete growing up. I went to Beverly High and I was an athlete there; it was kind of my identity. I played volleyball, basketball and softball, and I was also involved in sports and club teams outside of school. I never really thought I would get into fashion, but the reason I decided to do activewear was because I spent so much time wearing fitness and yoga clothing and I wanted to look good in it. Exercise, the clothes you wear and [the effort] you put into changing your lifestyle are all, at the end of the day, helping you become a more confident person.

What sets your brand apart from activewear labels like Lululemon and Fabletics?

... I envisioned trendy, fashion-forward clothing that was still functional, comfortable and supportive. I'm someone who's in shape and active and always exercising, but what I'm wearing can't look nice if it's not going to do the job. It needed to accomplish both.

We want you to look and feel your best; that's why Body Love Athletica's fabrics hold you tight and keep you looking toned just the way you like it. Our unique fabrics and chic designs give the freedom of movement and stretch and will keep you dry during each and every workout.

Why the name Body Love?

Body image is portrayed so negatively and people have this perception that is not realistic. I see how people can really be so unconfident in themselves and what a big impact that has on their lives. ... I feel like I put all my passions together and came up with Body Love as a way to help people make more of an effort to [improve] their health and make lifestyle changes.

What has been the greatest challenge you've faced so far?

... Though I did have people who I could ask general questions of, there was nobody I had telling me, "This is how you start and these are the steps." I had to figure it all out on my own. When I was figuring out for myself whether this is something I was passionate about, it was very easy for me to have ambition and be persistent about it. There wasn't a single day when I thought, Oh, I don't want to do this. Every day was a challenge; I literally didn't know what I was doing. ... I physically knocked on a hundred doors a day and asked so many questions to the point where I knew I had figured out what I was doing on my own. I actually started a one-year program for entrepreneur designers at [the Fashion Institute of Design & Merchandising] one month ago. I'm kind of doing things backwards, but I think I can now better apply my knowledge to the process.

Body Love Athletica

In one sentence, how do you define loving your body?

How much you put into your health is a reflection of who you are as a person and ultimately, that results in how you're going to feel and what kind of life you're going to live.

Where do you hope to be in one year?

I really like the path I'm on right now and I just hope that in one year I'll know more about the industry, I'll grow a lot more and Body Love will be in more stores. I want to make sure that I'm making a difference and really getting my message out there and changing the way people feel about themselves. I've been getting a lot of feedback from people who say I've helped them a lot.

Becher '90 talks HopSkipDrive, rideshare for families

Carolyn Yashari Becher '90 is a co-founder, the head of policy and people, and general counsel at HopSkipDrive, a rideshare service for families currently serving Greater Los Angeles.

Why did you start HopSkipDrive?

My co-founders and I started HopSkipDrive because we needed a safe and reliable way to get our kids around town. One didn't exist so we decided to solve our own problem. The three of us have eight kids among us, representing six different schools all over the city, so we had transportation challenges that we were facing.

How does it work?

Families sign up for an account and they can book a ride either through the app or on our website for kids age seven and up. The cost of the ride starts at $14 and goes up from there depending on the time and distance.

All of the drivers are fully vetted. We put them through a 15-point safety certification process. We were the first rideshare company to fingerprint drivers and we meet all of the drivers in person. They all come with at least five years of childcare experience, clean background checks and clean driving records.

How long have you been operating in the Los Angeles area?

We launched our pilot in November of 2014 to try it out in LA and we launched our full product in March of 2015. It's been very successful. We've done tens of thousands of rides. We have about 500 drivers and our biggest challenge is meeting demand.

[Tell us about the] free rides for families who were relocated due to the Porter Ranch gas leak.

We are a company founded by mothers. We empathized with the families ... and stepped in within a day to offer free rides to any family whose home or school was relocated, just to take a little bit of the stress out of what they were already going through.

Incidentally, we did the same thing with the LAUSD shutdown a couple months ago [when there] was the bomb threat. We had many, many rides scheduled for that day and we stepped in and re-routed kids and made a lot of changes free of charge just to be able to accommodate everybody. You recently secured $10.2 million from investors [on top of $3.9 million in seed funding]. Are you planning to ... expand beyond LA?

Yes, exactly. The purpose of the Series A was to expand nationally and we look forward to doing that in 2016.

[Would you] like to give a shout out to [any Beverly teachers who] inspired you along the way?

For sure Susan Stevens. She was my tennis coach. She inspired me to always work hard and to never rest on my laurels. ... I keep in touch with her still. She is probably one of the most genuine, good-hearted people I have ever known in my life.

Carolyn Yashari Becher '90 with husband Rob Becher and daughters, Gabriela, Maya and Eliana Becher

Gibbons '83 leads Beverly Hills Education Foundation

Monique Maas Gibbons '83 has an extensive history of service in the Beverly Hills Unified School District. She has served as PTA president at Horace Mann, PTA Council President and board member at Beverly Hills Education Foundation—and has been involved with the PTSA at Beverly High.

When she was approached by fellow BHEF board members about stepping forward as a candidate for the presidency, she said she felt she was prepared. "I think that there's a job to be done at BHEF and I think I can do it," she told Beverly Hills Weekly in an interview in May 2015.

Gibbons' goals include tweaking BHEF's fundraising approach to accommodate a different funding model. "I would like people to think that BHEF and the school district and the [Board of Education] are separate entities," Gibbons said. "...We are already funding a lot of the schools directly with our co-curriculum money. The days of us just handing a big check over to the district [are over] and we're hoping to continue that trend."

Another priority: raising awareness of BHEF within the community. "At one time, every parent [in the district] donated to BHEF and there are communities that are highly functioning communities comparable to ours, like Manhattan Beach, for example, where donations to the education foundation are a given," Gibbons said. "... I think we have to strengthen our message so that people remember us. The school district has a nice budget. There's funding that needs to be done for programs that are maybe neglected."

A perfect example, Gibbons said, is providing funding for Beverly High's college counselor. "We funded her position this year. Those sorts of innovations don't take place unless people donate."

Gibbons comes from a family of BHUSD supporters; her mother, Virginia Maas, served on the Board of Education in the 1990s and her husband, Bradley Gibbons, serves on the Citizens' Oversight Committee, which was established to oversee the Measure E construction bond proceeds and expenditures and review the audit reports.

When asked about advice her

mother and husband might have shared with her, Gibbons said: "We're an opinionated family. ... There's a lot to be said for institutional history; I would tell you that my mother would be the first to say we shouldn't be slaves to the past. Bradley is committed to the schools the way I am but we have different avenues of involvement."

Dela Peykar '07 and Michael Ronen '06 were married on Jan. 2, 2016. "We met the summer before my sophomore year and his junior year at my cousin's birthday party," Peykar wrote. "Michael was invited because he was (and is) good friends with my brother, Damon Peykar '06, and my cousin, Rambod Peykar '06. I was there to 'supervise' the boys. The first few months of the school year we both started to like each other and then sometime in January we started dating. When we first met we would only see each other in the hallways, but second semester we took P.E. together with Carter Paysinger. We went to his prom together and then the following year mine. [On Jan. 20, 2016, it was] 11 years ... since Michael and I first started dating."

Mayorkas said he was "a little nervous, I must admit" before throwing what would have been a strike from the pitching mound to a Dodger batboy "but wonderful to have the family and great friends from my youth here." Mayorkas described himself as a lifelong Dodger fan with pitcher Fernando Valenzuela his favorite player.

"As a young man, I remember going to games with [high school classmates] Steven Ricci, David Peskin and John Tabb," Mayorkas said. "The four of us have gone to opening day games for many, many years." Mayorkas threw the pitch in connection with Cuban Heritage Day, which also included

Edward Butterworth '32 passed away at his Arcadia home on April 29, 2014, less than a month shy of his 100th birthday. Butterworth attended Stanford, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree and three years later his Doctor of Law degree. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, The Order of the Coif and was awarded the Felix Frankfurter Law Scholarship at Harvard Law School. After serving as a naval officer in World War II, Butterworth became a deputy in the Office of the Solicitor General of the United States, then opened his own law practice in downtown Los Angeles. Twice mayor of Arcadia, Butterworth served a total of 12 years on the Arcadia City Council. He and his wife, Shirley, joined the Church of the Good Shepherd in Arcadia in its infancy and helped it expand and grow to its current size. While practicing law in Los Angeles, he also acted as general counsel to FEDCO for 26 years, and in 1958 was elected to the board of directors. He guided FEDCO in several legal battles, one of which became a landmark case, determining whether manufacturers could dictate to retailers the prices of their products. Manufacturers sued FEDCO and out of 31 lawsuits Butterworth defended—suits brought by companies such as General Electric, Sunbeam, Westinghouse and Revlon—he prevailed in 29 of them. Ultimately, although the Supreme Court issued a decision averse to FEDCO, General Electric gave up its attempt to dictate prices, opening the way for discount stores across the country to set their own pricing. Upon retiring from his law practice at age 63, he became president and CEO of FEDCO. He spent 19 years guiding FEDCO through good times, recession and the advent of the big national box stores. He retired in 1997 at age 83. For more than 30 years, Butterworth spent his weekends running an alfalfa farm in the Owens Valley. He is survived by his wife of 67 years, Shirley; sons Edward Jr., Kenneth and David; daughters Lynne and Lorell; and five grandchildren.

With Coldwell Banker, Bobbe sold many of the more remarkable Los Angeles homes of her time—remarkable both for their lavishness and their residents. Bobbe was also an outdoors woman and athlete, fishing and riding horses. She skied and played tennis competitively, often against men. She raised and trained dogs and was a sports car enthusiast, well known for the rainbow-painted Porsche in which she made her real estate rounds. Bobbe traveled widely throughout Europe, Asia, Africa and the Americas. As a patron of the arts she greatly enjoyed classical music and in recent years, Lady Gaga. Bob Bailey, legendary Hawthorne teacher

Longtime Hawthorne teacher Bob Bailey died of liver failure on Jan. 18. Throughout his 38-year career, most of which he spent teaching eighth-grade English, Bailey impacted generations of families.

"It's the most interesting age because it's probably the most awkward age," Bailey said of eighth graders in a 2010 YouTube interview with Beverly Hills Weekly.

Colleagues remembered him as a dedicated educator.

"I knew Bob as a Los Angeles County beach lifeguard and a Los Angeles County junior lifeguard instructor when I ran the program, and then knew him very well, obviously, as a teacher," said former BHUSD Superintendent and Hawthorne Principal Dick Douglas. "Besides being an incredibly high-quality swimmer, he was a brilliant man. He had a creative streak that was really unparalleled and he had a sense of humor that few people possess; he could engage students as an English teacher like no other. I enjoyed Bob a great, great deal and I'll miss him terribly."

Alana Lefkowitz '05, made the leap from Bailey's student to colleague.

"Mr. Bailey was the teacher everyone couldn't wait to have for eighth grade English," Lefkowitz said. "... Five years ago, I found myself back at Hawthorne, but this time as a teacher. Even though I was no longer a student, Bailey continued to be a teacher, guiding me and advising me, listening to my troubles and celebrating my successes. He was always protective of me and my career, and made sure I was well taken care of. I'm lucky to have been his colleague, luckier to have been his student and luckiest to have been his friend."

Like Bailey, BHUSD Superintendent Steve Kessler '71 taught eighth graders, only at Horace Mann.

"Bob was a gifted teacher and a leader of the Hawthorne faculty for nearly four decades," Kessler said. "He was so completely dedicated to his students for both their academic and social success. On a personal note, he was a colleague of mine for nearly four decades, as well as a childhood friend of my wife's, as they both swam together on a competitive swim team in the San Fernando Valley; they were childhood friends. So the Kessler household is very sad, like all that knew Bob, over his untimely passing."

In a 2014 interview with the Weekly upon his retirement, Bailey said Hawthorne "really hasn't changed."

But he did indicate a resistance to technology's reshaping of the teaching process.

"I've been able to teach the way I've taught the entire time for 38 years, but now's the time to go out," Bailey said. "I don't know that I have a choice as far as technology goes, which I think is a great thing, it's just not what I do."

He later mentioned feeling like the most challenged student that ever attended Hawthorne "because it's taken me 38 years to graduate."

"[Teaching is] the best job you could possibly have," Bailey said. "If it weren't, I would have left a long time ago."

Remembering former Hawthorne social studies teacher George Fourgis

Longtime Hawthorne educator George Fourgis has passed away. The legendary social studies teacher taught at Hawthorne in the 1960s, '70s and '80s.

Stephanie Lehrer, a first-grade teacher at Hawthorne, remembers meeting Fourgis in 1986.

"When I transferred from Beverly Vista to Hawthorne, I didn't know anybody, but he was of course the welcome wagon," Lehrer said. "He was a lovely, wonderful, sweet man. He was known to be a grandpa and an unbelievable teacher and I'm going to miss him very much."

Fourgis mentored Bob Bailey (see above), among many other Hawthorne faculty members.

Andy Licht '75 remembers being Fourgis' student in the early 1970s.

"It's simple for me," Licht said. "He was the best teacher I ever had. I still remember many, many aspects of the class and he was so engaging and made American history fun and interesting and my favorite subject."

Fourgis lived in the Palm Desert area with his daughter Kathy.

The Warner remembered

Cont. from p. 37 changed to Pacific's Beverly Hills theater, and I was employed there for over a year in 1970-71, along with several other BHHS classmates. A few years later, it was temporarily converted into a stage theater, but then became a second-run movie theater, and I saw a few movies there in the early '80s. It was demolished around 1989, as I recall. For a long time, there were six movie theaters in Beverly Hills, but now there is only one (the Music Hall).

With various friends I would spend many hours during the summer months at the Warner Theater.

This was a wonderful neighborhood theater that we would ride our Stingray bikes over to and enjoy an entertaining afternoon in a super cool air-conditioned environment.

As I recall the matinees cost no more than 75 cents. However, we did not always have enough money between us to pay for all of us to get in and buy junk food at the concession stand, so sometimes we would resort to Plan B.

Plan B entailed one or two of us paying to go in and then letting the rest of the group in through the side emergency exit. Seemed sort of devious at the time but looking back on this now, the manager probably knew exactly what we were doing and allowed it as he knew we would spend a lot more money at the concession stand than the entrance fee, money he would never see if we hadn't gone in at all!

The Warner in 1953

Anyway, two of the movies that really stand out (that I must have seen there at least a dozen times each) were Wild in the Streets and Walk Don't Run.

Wild in the Streets portrayed a counter-culture rock group leader who was pushing for political rights for teens to be able to vote. His rally cry was, "Don't trust anyone over 30!"

Walk Don't Run starring Cary Grant was set in the backdrop of the '64 Tokyo Olympics and painted a sort of threesome love-cupid triangle. (Isn't it amazing that we remember such things from our youth but we don't remember much of anything from a poly-sci class in 10th grade?)

The architecture of the Warner Theater was classic. It was definitely designed and followed the original expression of Beverly Hills City Hall. As the saying goes, they don't build them like that anymore. A terrible shame that we lost her and her beautiful edifice to the hands of developers who ironically, I think, eventually went bankrupt but not before the wrecking ball did its dirty work.

So to sum up: The Warner Theater was a memorable neighborhood theater that evokes great memories of an era that is sort of lost to the worlds of streaming video and virtual realities. Unfortunately so much of our youth will never experience those memorable times gone by.
